WAR EXPECTED IN FIVE WEEKS

ABYSSINIA RUSHES PREPARATIONS

NATION ILL-FITTED TO DEFEND HERSELF

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Aug. 16, 8.15 a.m.)

Harrai, Aug. 15.

Although Abyssinia is hoping for a peaceful settlement of her dispute with Italy, she is preparing for all eventualities.

The railways and roads from Addis Ababa to Harrai and Diredda show signs of the intensive military preparations with a view to repelling any advance by Italy's war host now camped on the frontiers of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland. The Italian attack is expected in five or six weeks' time, says Reuter's special correspondent.

A garrison of over 25,000 regular and irregular troops is now quartered in the neighbourhood of Harrai while it is estimated that 100,000 troops are lying between Harrai and Jijiga and Gerlogubi.

Large quantities of war materials are being concentrated at Jijiga which is regarded as one of the key points of Abyssinia's defences against an Italian offensive.

READY FOR WAR

Army officers, soldiers, peasants, Government officials and tradesmen all express the greatest enthusiasm for a war against Italians, providing the Italians are the aggressors. But it is recognised everywhere that Ethiopia is at present ill-fitted to defend her frontiers.

There are 500 British subjects at Harrai now; the majority of them Indians, and all have been warned to be ready for evacuation to safer points. Many are preparing to seek refuge in British Somaliland.—Reuter Special.

U. S. SYMPATHISERS

Geneva, Aug. 15.
A petition urging that "Ethiopia be safeguarded" has been received by the League from the International Council of Friends of Ethiopia, of Harlem, New York, on behalf of the millions of blacks in America.

The petition declares that the question of Ethiopia's protection is one of sacred honour and human duty. They claim that if the Christian nations stand by and see Abyssinia attacked by Italy it will be "a hollow mockery of their professions of Christianity."—Reuter Special.

FRENCH FORMULA

Paris, Aug. 15.
It is indicated in French circles that now that the British and Italian viewpoints are known the French Government is seeking a formula which may form a practical basis for discussions at the tri-party conference here on the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

It is believed, however, that owing to the complexity of the problem no such formula can be submitted to the conference as early as to-morrow, the first day of meeting.

M. Pierre Laval, the French Prime Minister, had an hour's conversation with M. Politis, the Greek Minister to Paris, who has been designated as the fifth member of the Conciliation Commission hearing the Italo-Abyssinian dispute.

M. Laval will meet Mr. Anthony Eden, the British chief delegate, to the three-power conversations, later in the day.

The Abyssinian Minister to Paris, M. Teclé Hawariat, has also seen both the British and French chief delegates.—Reuter.

LABOUR-LIBERAL UNION?

LLOYD GEORGE'S SCHEME

NOT VERY WELCOME

London, Aug. 15.

It is understood that a proposal put forward by Mr. Lloyd George for a combination between the Liberal and Labour Parties during the coming General Election is unlikely to be accepted by the Labourites.

The Labourites consider that Mr. Lloyd George's "New Deal" plan aims at saving the crumbling structure of capitalism while they are seeking to build the nation's resources anew.

Also, in view of the experience of the Labour Governments in 1924 and 1931, the Labourites are unwilling to accept Liberal support. They claim that on other occasions, Liberals were responsible for Labour defeats, and therefore the Labourites are striving for an independent majority in the coming election.

During the past fifteen months, the Labour Party has been making elaborate preparations for the election. Hundreds of candidates have been adopted and thousands of meetings held. The Party organisation claims that Labour will be fully prepared when the election comes.

The Labour Party Conference is to be held next month, but it is unlikely that it will examine Mr. Lloyd George's proposals.—Reuter.

Rome, Aug. 15.
Press attacks upon Great Britain are breaking out again.

Newspapers are suggesting that Britain may try to impose League sanctions against Italy.

Italian quarters are slightly apprehensive lest the League Council might favour the closing of the Suez Canal to ships of war, which is regarded as the only sanction which could possibly injure Italy.—Reuter.

Washington, Aug. 15.

It is revealed that Mr. John D. Rockefeller, the oil millionaire, has made gifts in oil shares to individuals and charities totalling $25,000,000 in the past nine days.

Mr. Rockefeller made these gifts following President Roosevelt's tax-the-rich message to Congress.

During the past eight months, however, Mr. Rockefeller has given away holdings valued at $77,000,000.—Reuter.

BED-MATES OF DISASTER

New York, Aug. 15.

Referring to President Roosevelt and Mr. Herbert Hoover as twin bed-mates of disaster, Senator Huey Long announced that he would stand for the Presidency, provided the Republicans go for Hoover and the Democrats for Roosevelt, and there is not any other Liberal candidate.

Spicing his statements with a choice selection of oaths, Senator Long warned anyone against voting for either Roosevelt or Hoover, as they would be "just asking for an introduction to the gate-keeper of Hell!"

"Under my Presidency," declared Senator Long, "you will have more millionaires than were ever dreamed of, and everyone else will have plenty, too."

"All kinds of people, from the top to the bottom, will line up behind me, except perhaps a few blighted millionaires who cannot see much beyond their noses."

Senator Long indicated that "Share Our Wealth" will be the major point in his election programme.—Reuter.

LONE ENGLISHMAN'S PLIGHT

HELD FOR RANSOM

Peiping, Aug. 15.

Chinese reports state that Mr. Gareth Jones, the British newspaper correspondent who was captured by bandits near Paotung, Mongolia, on July 25 and is being held for ransom, has not yet been traced.

Reports that his whereabouts was known are entirely unconfirmed, the authorities state. They have been able to learn nothing more concerning him since the bandits snatched him farther into the Mongolian back-country following the misdirection of funds which were supposed to have been sufficient to set him free.

These funds should have been sent to a spot designated by the bandits, but was unaccountably sent elsewhere.

Dr. Herbert Mueller, who was captured with Mr. Jones, was later set at liberty and returned to Paotung to report that the bandits had said they would probably kill the Englishman unless the ransom were paid quickly.—Reuter.

Anti-Jewish Excesses In Berlin Feared

DREADED STREICHER LEADS CAMPAIGN

CHILDREN OF THE DEVIL

Berlin, Aug. 15.

In order to save themselves from the risk of possible excesses, Jewish leaders here are urging their co-religionists not to show themselves in the cafes or even in the streets to-night, when the greatest anti-Jewish rally ever held will be addressed by the notorious German anti-Semite, Julius Streicher.

Streicher is editor of the Stuerrmer, a newspaper which accused the Jews of ritual murder. He will address a gathering at which 25,000 Nazis will attend.

The meeting starts at 8.30 p.m. at the Sports Palace, where all space has been sold out.

A simultaneous meeting is being held in another hall and tickets for admission are four pence each. The Voelkischer Beobachter says there are 500,000 registered Jews in Germany, of which 160,000 are in Berlin.—Reuter Special.

CHILDREN OF DEVIL

Berlin, Aug. 15.

A huge Nazi meeting in support of the anti-Jewish campaign was held in the sports palace and was addressed by the chief Jew baiter, Julius Streicher, to-night.

The radical anti-Semite began his speech with a violent attack on the Jews, declaring their father was the Devil himself.

He then turned his attention to the foreign press, saying:

"I know no lower profession than the making of business out of lies. What concern is it of yours if we clean up our own house?"

The Jews had been warned by their leaders to keep indoors during the evening. All their usual cafes and restaurants were deserted, although several of them carried notices announcing concealed gardens in the backyard.

Nothing untoward occurred during the early proceedings. Streicher spoke for two and a half hours. He violently attacked Catholic priests as well as Jews. Perspiration streamed down his face, and many of the audience, in

U.S. STILL BUYS LONDON SILVER

MARKET NOW MORE QUIET

TREASURY PROGRAMME CALLED "FARCE"

Washington, Aug. 15.

Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the United States Treasury, and the man behind the Silver Purchase Programme, to-day announced that the Treasury was again buying silver in the London market, which was more quiet than yesterday when heavy United States intervention was necessary.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Commodity Exchange has amended its silver trading rules by increasing the price fluctuation limitation from three cents to five cents, as from September 3.

The Senate has added an amendment to the Tax Bill, providing for the repeal of sections of the Silver Purchase Act providing the fifty per cent. tax on silver profits, authorising the nationalisation of silver and requiring licences for silver imports and exports.

Following a conference with Mr. Morgenthau on the United States silver policy, Senator Elmer Thomas stated:

"Unless the Government buys sufficient silver in a way that will make the silver dollar actually worth a dollar, the programme might as well be abandoned. Otherwise the Government will be left holding a lot of silver and the only ones who will benefit will be the foreign speculators."

Immediately after Senator Thomas issued this statement, Mr. Morgenthau announced that the Government was still buying silver.—Reuter.

POLICY DENOUNCED

Washington, Aug. 15.

Denouncing the Silver Purchase Programme as a "farce," Senator Thomas contended that the law, rather than its administration, was at fault.

He announced a drive to amend the Silver Purchase Act with a view to "bringing the silver market to America."

Senator Thomas asserted that the Government was trying to buy silver as cheaply as possible instead of pushing the price with the ultimate objective of its monetisation.

The official rate of the Hongkong dollar was unchanged at 1s. 11½d. this morning, despite the fall in silver prices in London and New York. The market was quite firm, with business done at two shillings.

"We thought we had a silver policy, but we haven't other than to buy as cheaply as possible. In that case we made a terrible mistake by enacting the programme because we could have bought silver at 25 or 30 cents an ounce."

"Unless the Government plans to make silver into real primary money, the whole programme is a colossal farce, and as soon as the next Administration comes into power the whole thing will be scuttled."

FALSE HOPES

"We have built up false hopes in the minds of the silver states which are doomed to suffer a tremendous loss when the Administration changes," he declared.

Meanwhile the silver market continued on a downward trend despite Mr. Henry Morgenthau's statement that the Treasury was still buying, which is indicative that the Treasury continues to adhere to its policy to buy as cheaply as possible, and avoid bidding up the market, and will accumulate on a scaling down basis in the face of pressure of liquidation.—Reuter.

A METAL WAR WITH AMERICA

BRITAIN BLAMED FOR SILVER MUDDLE

JAMES CROMWELL
SEES IT ALL

Shanghai, Aug. 10.
British propaganda motivates Oriental attacks on the American silver-purchase policy, according to James H. R. Cromwell, writer on economic subjects who is better known as the husband of the former Doris Duke, "richest girl in the world".

Declaring that British policy seeks to thwart the American silver programme in order to perpetuate British financial control of India, Cromwell gave his views on the economic forces affecting the Orient after first-hand observation of conditions in the Far East.

Great Britain, he asserted, is using China as a shield in an effort to discredit American attempts to restore the 1926 level of world commodity prices. Such restoration, he said, was the ultimate aim of America's silver policy.

Propaganda

"In travelling through the great silver-using nations of the Orient," he declared, "I have found a strangely co-ordinated British propaganda directed against the American endeavour to restore and stabilise silver."

"Although the tactics of the Roosevelt Administration in buying silver without simultaneously selling gold are most regrettable, and although its methods of operation are clumsy and amateurish, it is important to remember that the fundamental objective is a restoration of the international commodity price structure which has been wrecked by the policies of the Bank of England."

"Wily British Cousins"

Cromwell assailed the campaign of abuse which has greeted American silver-buying operations, sarcastically observing that "while vociferously protesting against the 'outrage' being committed upon helpless China, our wily British cousins who ignored Chinese protests when their own policy was destroying the purchasing power of silver, are now losing no opportunity to make an opposite condition unbearable."

As examples of what he termed the subversive British influence he cited "the heavy and wholly unnecessary shipments of silver from China by potent British-Oriental banking interests and the recent suspiciously peculiar manipulation on the London silver market."

"The Bank of England," Cromwell stated, "seems determined to maintain a minus-1914 level of world commodity prices, and its agents and propagandists, by using China as a shield, are attempting to side-track the American silver policy before its success can break the British financial stranglehold upon India and restore prices to a 1926 level."

Placing the blame for world-wide deflation squarely on Britain, Cromwell concluded his expression of economic opinion with the remark: "Because of the density of the prevailing British smoke-screen it seems fitting at this time to recall who precipitated the calamity which America is seeking to relieve."—United Press.

MR. AND MRS. CROMWELL

Prosperity Was Not Around Corner

WORLD'S CRAZIEST GET-RICH-QUICK SCHEME FAILS

London, July 31.

The craziest get-rich-quick scheme that ever captivated a nation—the "prosperity" chain letter movement that swept the continent of America—has not succeeded with the British public.

Hundreds received invitations to take part in the simple and alluring easy money proposition of Trans-Atlantic origin which offered the prospect of a 15,625 to 1 return on a modest investment.

The Sixpenny Prosperity League, which proclaimed itself "the latest and greatest league in the world" and the Prosperity Club "the latest, jolliest, and most unique club in the world" was among the many chain letter fellowships which were launched by imitators of the American pioneers of the new prosperity.

Circulars, headed by a list of six names and addresses informed the novice how he could hope to obtain a return of nearly £400 for the investment of sixpence.

All he had to do was to send a postal order for sixpence to the person whose name was at the top of the list.

Then he omitted that name from the list, added his own at the bottom, made five copies of the circular and sent the sheets to five of his friends "who are willing to continue the chain of prosperity."

The delightful sequel is summarised in this paragraph in the circular of the Sixpenny Prosperity League. "By the time your name is at the top of the list it will have appeared in so many lists that through multiplication you will have received 15,625 replies, each with a prosperity sixpence—a total amounting to £390/12/6."

The originator of the scheme was assured of this handsome return if 19,530 persons (the 15,625 who send him sixpences plus those in the intermediate stages) could be found who were willing to continue his chain of prosperity.

But how many more participants must be found if the 15,625 who contributed to the originator's prosperity are themselves to reap their reward?

The circular does not go into the mathematics of the question, but the answer is 305,156,350—nearly seven times the entire population of the British Isles, which is about 45,000,000. The 305 million would in turn have to find about 6,000,000,000 to continue the chain of prosperity—and unfortunately the population of the world is only two thousand millions.

DUKHOBOR SECT WILL QUIT CANADA

PARADES IN NUDE IN JUNGLES OF CHACO INSTEAD

WEARY of the religious persecution which they charge to Canadian authorities and have publicly resented by parading in the nude, 15,000 members of the Russian sect of Dukhobors are planning to leave their Saskatchewan homes for the wilds of Paraguayan Chaco.

Preparations for the mass migration have started in New York, where Dr. Enrique Bordenave, the Minister from Paraguay, has discussed plans there with a delegation of Dukhobors—the advance guard which will select a locality for the new colony.

Heartened by reports of the success of the Mennonite experiment in the Chaco, which has grown in ten years to a community of 6,000, and guaranteed complete religious freedom by Paraguayan law, the Dukhobors have decided to rebuild in that land the life they started thirty-five years ago in Canada.

They are remnants of a sect expelled from Russia about 1885. Literally, the name means "Spirit Wrestlers." Some went to Canada and others to Cyprus. Dukhobors have no stated places or ceremonies of worship, no holy days, and no ordained ministry.

They deny the divinity of Christ and give mystical interpretation to the Scriptures. Frequent clashes with Canadian authorities have kept these people before the public in recent years. Their retaliation has taken the form of nude procession in public places and has resulted in the arrest of some of their leaders.

Several months ago a representative of the Saskatchewan colony conferred with Harry A. Dae-English, Paraguayan Consul in Los Angeles, concerning the prospects for settling in the Chaco.

The matter was referred to the Paraguayan Government through the legation there, and a decision reached to afford the future immigrants the advantages of an area far from the war zone where Paraguay and Bolivia are struggling for mastery of the untamed wilderness.

Dr. Bordenave said his Government would welcome the peaceful invasion of the Dukhobors, just as it did the Mennonites.

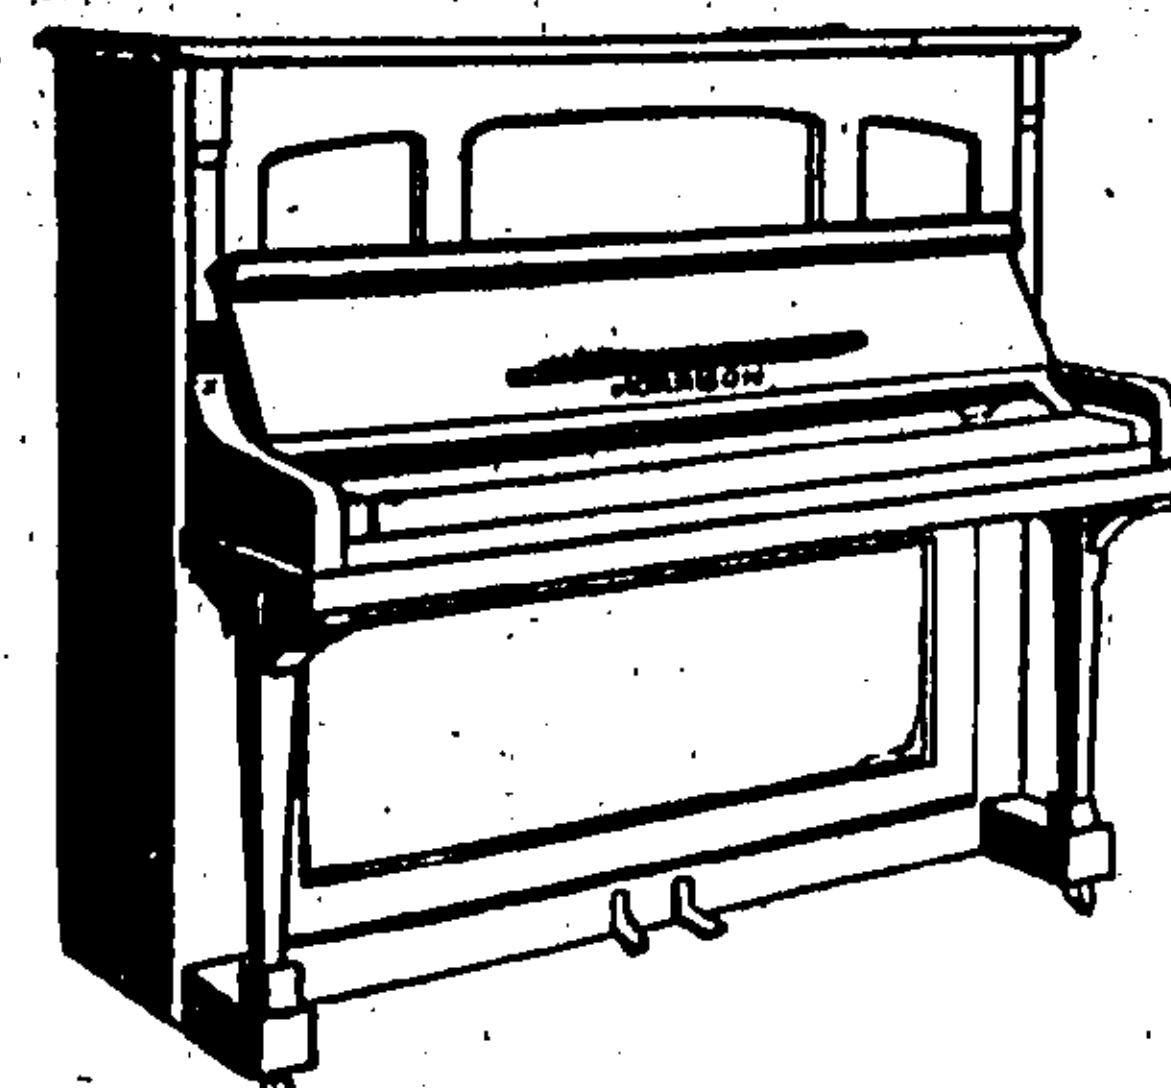

They see in the Chaco, he said, an opportunity to cultivate the fruits and vegetables which comprise their entire diet.

The land would be purchased from private interests at prices ranging from 2 to 3 dollars an acre. The Dukhobors are said to have arrived thirty-five years ago in Canada owning nothing but the ragged clothes they wore, and now they claim aggregate cash assets of more than £2,000,000. This money would go with them to Paraguay.

The Government there, in addition to religious liberty, guarantees foreign settlers and their children exemption from military service and freedom from taxation for ten years.

June Collier, the film actress, has given birth to a daughter, says Reuter from Hollywood. She was married in July 1931 to Stuart Erwin, also a noted film actor, at Yuma, Arizona. The couple already have a two-year-old son. June Collier is 27.

ITALIAN BID FOR POWER

UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN LAGGING FAR BEHIND

Shanghai, Aug. 10.
Presentation of a tri-motored Italian aeroplane by Mussolini to Chiang Kai-shek, China's military chief-tain and virtual dictator, was more than a good-will gesture on the part of Il Duce.

The gift emphasised the supremacy which the Italians have attained in the military aviation market in China. Already they have eliminated the British from the market and they are rapidly displacing the Americans.

When China first began building a modern air force, shortly after the northward sweep of the Nationalist armies in 1927, British interests were first in the field and their product found favour with Chinese military chieftains.

At that time the power of the National Government was far from consolidated, and virtually independent warlords in various provinces had their own military forces.

As they turned their attention to the purchase of fighting aircraft, the business was easily cornered by the old-established British trading firms which held agencies for British-made planes.

But the agency plan, which gave the British their early entree in the field, proved a detriment in the end. Alert American manufacturers started sending their own sales representatives to China, and a number of well-known aces came here to demonstrate planes and sell them. Among them were Major James Doolittle and Captain Frank Hawks.

The Americans were highly successful. Not only did they have good products, but the direct factory-to-buyer selling plan enabled them to quote advantageous prices. The British middlemen, maintaining only slight contact with the aeronautical engineers at home, were soon out of the running.

With the National government consolidating and expanding its influence, it speedily became practically the only buyer of fighting planes, and its cordiality to the American product gave Americans a virtual monopoly of the Chinese military-aircraft market.

The Italians, however, went the Americans one better. Taking the Italian Boxer Indemnity Fund, they devoted it to the purchase of aircraft, giving them a financial advantage against which even the American terms could not compete.

But Italy went even farther. She sent some of her most famous flying officers to China, not only to demonstrate planes, but to teach young Chinese officers how to fly the new ships and manipulate their guns and bombing apparatus. Italy paid particular attention to this phase of her new relations with China, and was able to bring to the work the prestige of newly-acquired eminence in world speed, endurance and altitude competitions.

This activity culminated in the establishment at Nanchang of China's "West Point of the Air", a military aviation school of which the staff of instructors is 100 per cent. Italian.

Nanchang, to which the national capital was temporarily removed during the 1932 Sino-Japanese hostilities at Shanghai and Nanking, is the most heavily

Salvage Plans In Quetta

16,000 CORPSES IN CITY OF THE DEAD

Simla, Aug. 1.
THE Government of India's plans for salvage operations at Quetta are made clear in a communique, issued to-day, together with a comprehensive report by Col. Russell, Public Health Commissioner.

It has been decided, says the communique, to instruct the authorities in Baluchistan to take immediate steps to implement the following recommendations made by Col. Russell:

Salvage could begin immediately in certain non-residential and less damaged areas.

The clearance should be undertaken of the wider thoroughfares, and the experimental salvage of a few houses carried out to test the possibility of extending the immediately salvageable area.

The evacuation should be carried out of railway staffs and families owing to their congested camp.

The refugee camp on the race-course, which still shelters 5,000 people, should be removed to a better site near the brewery, where there is a better water supply available.

Col. Russell states that 12,000 to 16,000 corpses are buried under the debris at Quetta in addition to thousands of animal carcasses.

It is undesirable, for health reasons, however, to undertake exhumation on any extensive scale before next March.

The question of the future reconstruction of Quetta, states the communique, cannot be decided until full reports from all the experts, including the military authorities and the geologist, are available.

Parliament Without An Opposition

Halifax (Nova Scotia).

Aug. 1.
The Liberals have won a hundred per cent. victory in the provincial elections in Prince Edward Island, the smallest Canadian province and the last stronghold of the Conservatives.

The Conservatives [whose national leader is Mr. R. B. Bennett, Dominion Premier] have lost not only their majority but every seat they held.

Mr. Walter Lea, the triumphant Premier-elect, appeared nonplussed to-day when he faced the House of Assembly in which there was no Opposition.

He confessed that he could not say what course he would adopt in carrying out normal British parliamentary procedure.

It has been suggested that he nominate one of his own supporters as a makeshift Opposition.—Exchange fortified defence. There Chinese officers are trained in the use of Italian-made planes and are fast acquiring an Italian "slant" on all tactical and technical problems.

The importance of Nanchang is emphasised by the history of the Central Aviation School which was established under American tutelage. In 1932 an unofficial American aviation mission headed by Col. John F. Jewett came to China and negotiated a three-year contract for instruction of Chinese pilots by American instructors at Hangchow. The school was established and flourished, but when the contract expired this year it was not renewed, and all the American officer-instructors, with one exception, have left the school and returned to America.

Withdrawal of the American group from the Hangchow school leaves the military wing of Chinese aviation under virtually complete Italian influence.

The gift aeroplane, a tri-motored Savoia Marchetti 72, was flown here by Col. Silvio Scaroni, one of Italy's best-known war pilots, and Captain Angelo Tondi, another ace. Col. Scaroni was formerly air attaché at the Italian embassy in Washington, and his errand here indicated the importance which Il Duce places in Chinese relations.

Presentation of the plane to General Chiang Kai-shek was expected to consolidate Italy's predominant influence in Chinese military aviation. This, added to the fact that Italy was the first of the treaty powers to elevate her legation in China to the rank of an embassy, was expected to give the Italians a "flying start" on all other nations in cultivating more friendly relations with the Chinese government.—United Press.

LAST REFUGE FOR WHITE RUSSIANS IS IN BELGRADE

HOW SERBIA REPAID A GREAT WAR ALLY

Vienna, Aug. 8.

WHITE RUSSIAN exiles everywhere are watching with interest and anxiety the efforts of other members of the Little Entente to get Yugo Slavia to recognise the Soviets.

This anxiety is counter-balanced, however, by the knowledge that Prince Paul, Regent of Yugo Slavia, has been recently conducting an anti-Soviet policy.

White Russian interest in this question is understandable when it is realised that Belgrade is one of the last havens for exiled Russians. There are many other countries where Russian emigrants are living well, and others where they are living badly, but Belgrade is the only city which has become a real new home for Russian outcasts.

Only in Belgrade is the old flag of the "Tsar of all Russians" still waving over the building of Imperial Russian legation.

Every day in Belgrade one can see an old man walking about the streets in the full uniform of an Imperial Russian general. He is honoured by Yugo-Slav soldiers like a Yugo-Slav general.

Matruska Moskva

There are big Russian restaurants in Belgrade which were not established to present a sham shadow of old Russia to tourists. In these restaurants meals are served not by Russian "princesses," but by true Russian waiters who learned their profession in different restaurants of old "Matruska Moskva"—Mother Moscow—before the Great War. In these restaurants hundreds of Russian emigrants daily eat real Russian cookery, forgetting for a few minutes that they are not in their fatherland.

Near the King's palace stands the Russian legation. The telegrams which were exchanged between this edifice and St. Petersburg 21 years ago were decisive for the fate of the whole world. Now this building gives accommodation to the Russian Red Cross Society and to several other Russian institutions. Only the old Imperial flag still floats over it.

There are many thousand Russians in Belgrade. There are Russian beggars and Russian millionaires. There are Russians who hold high official situations. There are streets in Belgrade where one can hear the people speaking more Russian than Serbian, where one can see Russian shops with Russian signboards at every step.

It was the late King Alexander who did this act of kindness for the Russian emigrant. As a young boy Alexander went to Russia. He was educated in the page corps in St. Petersburg. Since that time he loved Russia and Russians.

Powerful Friend

When he was raised to the throne by his father, King Peter, on June 12, 1914, he knew that small Serbia had in great Russia a powerful friend.

A few days after he had ascended the throne the world war broke out. Russia fought for King Alexander's small country.

Serbia became a great power after the war and the Tsar's Russia disappeared. The Tsar's beaten army had to leave Russia.

Now, at this moment, King Alexander saw a chance to show his gratitude to Tsarist Russia. He opened the portals of his country to the Russian refugees. Thousands of soldiers, officers and civilians jumped at his offer.

New Fatherland

They found a new fatherland in Alexander's country. Many officers and soldiers were taken over in the Yugo Slavic army. Most of the civilians got jobs—many of them high official situations.

Years have passed. Soviet Russia did its utmost to be recognised by the Balkan countries. Soviet Ambassadors went to Bucarest and Sofia. Belgrade, however, remained hostile.

On October 9, 1934, Alexander was assassinated. With him the Russian emigrants lost their most powerful protector. They are convinced that Regent Prince Paul will continue Alexander's negative policy against the Soviets. But they also realise that Soviet Russia has friends in Yugo Slavia, especially the Oppositional deputy, Doctor Dravetjub Jovanovitch, who spares no pains to attain the recognition of Soviet Russia by Yugo Slavia.—United Press.

Beatrice Thomson, actress and playwright, has filed a petition in England for divorce against Claude Rains, the British film star, who is in America. Miss Thomson starred with Claude Rains in New York in 1926 in "The Constant Nymph." Since then Claude Rains has made a name for himself in Hollywood, his first film part—that of the leading man in H. G. Wells's "Invisible Man"—being a striking success. Alleging desertion without cause in New York in 1928, Claude Rains obtained a final decree of divorce from Beatrice Thomson at Trenton, New Jersey, last April, and three days later he married Frances Popper.

HOW FILM STAR FORTUNES HAVE DWINDED

Hollywood, Aug. 1.
Great fortunes of Hollywood have dwindled. Nearly all the stars who have just made out their income tax assessments for the past year have suffered.

John Barrymore's assessed valuation is £11,315—of which £11,270 represents his yacht Infanta. A year ago his gross assessment was £19,288. Mae West is down for £800 worth of jewellery. Charlie Chaplin's assessment—£538,498—compares with £610,244 last year.

Gloria's £1,950

Mary Pickford is listed at £293,148, compared with £390,154 last year, and the rolls show only £7,908 for Douglas Fairbanks sen., compared with £213,106.

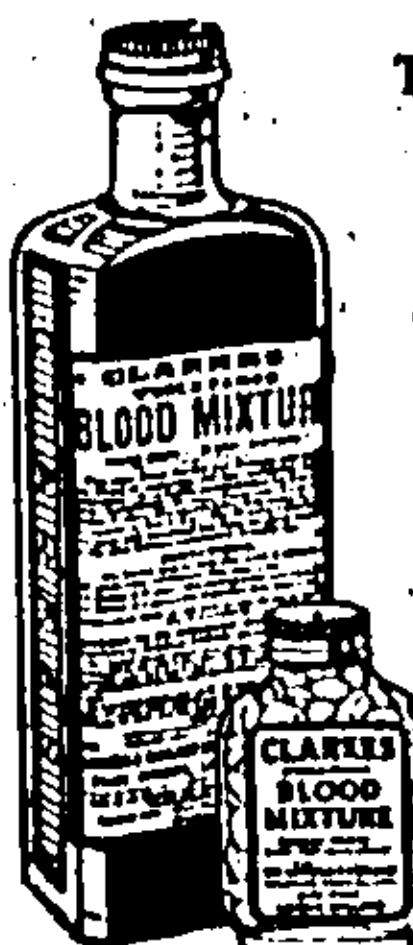

"Will" Rogers is assessed at £40,508, compared with £64,664 last year.

Gloria Swanson: Dropped from £6,926 last year to £1,950. Some of these stars hold property outside Los Angeles which is not accounted for in these income tax returns.

CHAPLIN FILM

The title of Charles Chaplin's new film, which has been in production more than a year, and which, so far, has been referred to as "Production No. 5," is announced. It is "Charlie Chaplin in Modern Times." Never before has a star's name been included in the title of a film, and this is the first occasion on which Chaplin has officially identified himself with the chief character of his story.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

"To-day—any to-day—is great drama," so declares J. Walter Ruben, director of fast-moving screen drama. It's another form of reporting he says, and the reporter's mind works just as in a local room. A striking instance is his latest picture "Public Hero No. 1" having its initial showings today at the Queen's Theatre. It deals with the pursuit of a notorious public enemy by the Department of Justice. It shows how the investigation goes, the perils the investigators face, the hardships they suffer and the devotion they put into their jobs in the complex task of trailing down their quarry. The new picture, a story by Ruben and Wells Root, was directed by Ruben with an elaborate cast. Chester Morris and Joseph Calleia play pivotal roles in the fast-moving picture involving the pursuit of a notorious criminal.

Louise Rainer plays a physician aligned with criminal gangs, and who in the end proves the looming danger that puts a gang leader into the hands of the law. "A similar case" says Ruben, "is on police records in a Western city where a physician who made a business of treating wounded gangsters and refusing to make a report was arrested. Another case is on record where a physician was captured and forced to perform a plastic operation. He was later silenced by the vengeance of the gangsters, but when assured of protection told the story."

"The Right to Live"

If Josephine Hutchinson occasionally had a far-away look in her eyes, during the production of Warner Bros. picture "The Right to Live" showing at the Alhambra last night, there is a good reason for it. For the first time in almost a decade, the actress was not personally involved in the Fall Season on Broadway. Miss Hutchinson after a highly successful screen debut in the Warner Bros. picture "Happiness Ahead" given a leading role in "The Right to Live" and was working in it when Broadway opened with its best season in five years. New York in autumn is a part of Josephine's heritage.

Ever since she was a youngster, she has been a part of the theatre. Her mother, Leontine Korte, a well-known character actress, and the girl was trained from childhood for a theatrical career. Together, they had their lean days as well as their triumphs. Josephine lifted herself from obscurity to the position of one of the finest young actresses on the American stage, and now she is being groomed for even greater triumphs on the screen. She loves Hollywood and is highly enthused by her screen work. But somehow, California is not the same as New York. Step in front of a camera and she feels as if she is not the same as stepping in front of a first night audience, to present a new play for the first time. Her old company, the Civic Repertory Theatre, which gave her her greatest stage roles, was having a brilliant full season. Her mother was playing the "Duchess" in "L'Aiglon" in which the brilliant talents of Eva Le Gallienne and Ethel Barrymore were combined for the first time. Some other actress was playing the role that Jo herself had been offered. She got little letters from Miss Barrymore and other members of the Company, who told her of the try-outs in Philadelphia and Atlantic City. She heard all the news about the other shows planned for a bright Broadway season. She could almost feel the tinkle in the air that is part of autumn in New York when she reads her letters. Miss Hutchinson knew that there were other girls in Broadway shows who would gladly be in her shoes, playing an important dramatic role in "The Right to Live," and surrounded by such personalities as George Brent, Peggy Wood, Colin Clive, Henrietta Cresson and C. Aubrey Smith. She was happy about it herself. But all good troupers could understand just how she felt and why she got that occasional far-away look in her eyes. "The Right to Live" is an intensely dramatic story with unusual romance in which two brothers love the same woman, who is the wife of one. The story is based on the stirring drama, "Sacred Flame" by Somerset Maugham, author of "The Painted Veil" and "Of Human Bondage."

"Private Worlds"

The story of a woman who knew all about love in other's lives but feared it herself, is told in Paramount's "Private Worlds," coming on Sunday to the King's Theatre and starring glamorous Claudette Colbert with Charles Boyer and Joan Bennett. A dramatic picture of the impulsive behind love, "Private Worlds" presents Miss Colbert as a female doctor in the unusual setting of a hospital for the insane. With extraordinary insight into the tragedies which have driven others insane, this woman is yet blind to the need of her own heart. Miss Colbert and her associate doctor, Joel McCrea, are happy in the work they are doing until the intrusion of Charles Boyer, another doctor, upsets their work. Boyer's vampire sister lures McCrea away from his faithful and uncompromising wife, Joan Bennett. In a short time the lives of this small group are enmeshed in a web of love, intrigue and conflicting wills. The denouement of the drama occurs when Joan Bennett is driven to the verge of insanity by her husband's unfaithfulness and Claudette Colbert is awakened to the love that awaits her. Phyllis Buttone's best-selling novel of the same name furnished the original from which "Private Worlds" was adapted. Gregory La Cava directed the picture from an adaptation by Lynn Starling.

"Naughty Marietta"

Music, romance, stirring drama and spectacle blend in one of the outstanding screen productions of the year in "Naughty Marietta" haunting screen transcription of Victor Herbert's masterpiece, playing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. The charming music of the great composer, as sung by Jennette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy is heard against a thundering background of drama. The settlement of Louisiana, pioneer struggles, the "Marriage Auction" of St. Louis of the old Creole days, the capture of the Casquette Girls by pirates, their rescue, and other gripping dramatic details are woven into a story that, aside from music, provides an epic recital of the founding of one of America's most romantic cities. Amid the drama runs romance, and with it such great song hits as "All Sweet Mystery of Life," "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," "Chansonette," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," and others of Herbert's immortal airs. An elaborate cast was assembled for the picture by Elsa Lanchester.

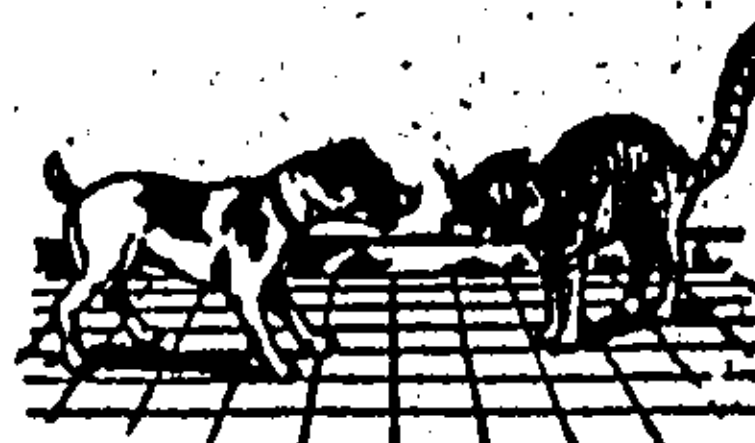

Comedy is handled with skill by Edward Brophy and Harold Huber as the two sergeants.

"Anne of Green Gables"

A best seller since it was first published in 1908, throughout the world, "Anne of Green Gables," has been brought to the screen as an RKO-Radio Picture and is now at the Star Theatre. More than one million copies of the book, written by L. M. Montgomery, have been sold in the United States and Canada, and the novel has enjoyed tremendous popularity in Great Britain, and has been translated into many foreign languages including the Dutch, French, Polish, Norwegian and Swedish. Sixteen-year-old Anna Shirley is featured in the film and Tom Brown plays the leading boy role. The featured adult roles are by Helen Westley and O. P. Heggie. Sara Haden and Gertrude Messinger are others in the cast. The story concerns an orphan heroine whom Mark Twain characterized as "the dearest and most moving and delightful child since the immortal Alice." Adopted by a spinster and bachelor brother and sister who had been expecting a boy from the orphanage instead of a girl, she transforms their lives by her vivacity and lovable character. Her romance with the most popular boy in the country school is also traced. George Nichols, Jr., directed.

"The Daring Young Man"

"The Daring Young Man" is showing to-day at the King's Theatre. Jimmy Dunn's portrayal of the newspaper reporter who leaves his bride-to-be waiting at the church, while he dashes off on a secret assignment, is "the top" in madcap comedy. Written by Claude Binyon and Sidney Skolnick, of newspaper fame, "The Daring Young Man" shouldn't be missed. It is the hilarious story of a New York newspaperman (James Dunn) who never tires of expressing his sarcastic views of marriage until he meets Mac Clarke, a reporter on a rival paper. A rapid-fire courtship is followed by plans for a quick marriage. On his wedding day, Jimmy Dunn is forced to cover an assignment in a jail without telling his betrothed of the circumstances. She gets worried and has an appeal broadcast for him. Dunn hears it in a madcap jail where favored prisoners are allowed telephones, radios, cafe meals and occasional leaves. The reporter manages to buy a "temporary parole" but is quickly brought back by two kidnappers, when the warden learns his true identity. Mac Clarke, about to marry another, discovers her fiancé's predicament and goes to the jail to see him. While there, she is locked in, through Dunn's connivance. A reform committee arrives and a rib-rocking sequence winds up the film, which was directed by William A. Selter and produced by Robert T. Kane for Fox Film.

A FINE WORK

The handling of no fewer than 4,000 cases, involving the welfare of 7,600 young people, is the record now attained by the Society for the Protection of Children. It is a record of which the voluntary workers associated with the Society may well be proud, for it implies the bringing of better health and more happiness to thousands of poor juveniles whose parents are utterly unable, by reason of poverty, to provide the necessities of life, let alone medical treatment, for their offspring. Some idea of the extent of this poverty may be gained from the fact that in cases dealt with last month, there were 19 in which no income at all was being received, whilst the average monthly income per head in the other cases was well below the two-dollar mark! It is almost impossible for the ordinary individual of even modest means to envisage what this means. These unfortunate people who are helped by the Society cannot, in the majority of cases, afford to rent even a cubicle; they have to be content with bed-spaces which in many instances have to do duty for a whole family. When the Society was first launched, the utmost difficulty was experienced in inducing poor people to accept medical and other help, but of late there has been a growing disposition on the part of those needing assistance and advice to visit the Society's centres, no fewer than 2,558 such visits being paid during last month. This of itself is proof of the appreciation now shown of the humanitarian work of the Society. Not only does this work include the provision of medical aid, milk, etc., but it also involves the maintenance of deserving cases in various institutions and the granting of supplies to others. In short, the Society is doing its utmost, within the resources available, to brighten the lives and improve the prospects of a section of the community which finds it extremely difficult to keep above the mere subsistence level. It is, moreover, interesting itself in the question of the possible provision of children's hospitals, the need of which has long been felt. Admittedly, only the fringe of a big social problem is at present being touched, but,

NOTES OF THE DAY

FINANCIAL IRONY

Comment on the silver flutters of yesterday and the day before is a little belated at this stage, and cannot possibly serve any useful purpose. Nevertheless, there is something to be said about speculating in the market. Not for a moment do we suggest that the New York Journal of Commerce was speaking without substantial authority when it asserted that the Treasury of the United States would abandon its silver purchasing policy in the foreign field. Reports of that sort frequently are whispered from the private offices of influential people, though they may have been founded on no better evidence than something heard through the crack in the door. Unfortunately a newspaper is not in a position to obtain either confirmation or denial of such rumours in a moment. The Treasury Department at Washington is most secretive. Moreover, a paper receiving such a startling piece of information as that published by the Journal of Commerce must hasten to publish it, in the public interest, unless it is contradicted. It has been hinted that perhaps the Treasury Department itself was responsible for the rumour that it was about to change its policy, its endeavour being to shake out the "bull" operators and stabilise the market. Whatever the case may be, the Washington reports were almost universally accepted at their face value and the markets responded with a crash. There were ruined men in other trading centres than Hongkong. All of which goes to prove—if anything—that even the best authority is apt to go astray and that it is best to invest only in official information. And yet, by following the Journal of Commerce's apparently incorrect report, one could have made a small fortune on Wednesday afternoon. That is true irony.

INSTRUMENTS OF EDUCATION

The age is fruitful in new mediums of education. Do the authorities take full advantage of them? To this question Sir John Keith, director general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, and Sir James Marchant, chairman of visual education, reply with a resounding no. According to Sir John Keith, not more than 20 per cent of the educational authorities in Britain use the instructional services provided by the B.B.C.; yet, he maintains, the sum of £400,000, spread over five years, would equip every school in the country with a receiving set. The same is true of cinema projectors. Many excellent educational films have been manufactured, especially in the sphere of natural history; and the educative and cultural value of the B.B.C.'s radiocasts to schools, contributed by eminent authors, scholars, statesmen and journalists, is well known; so that it is regrettable if full use is not made of them.

ANOTHER VIEW

But there is something to be said for the conservatism of teachers. At the beginning of the era of film and radio so many extravagant claims were made on their behalf, sometimes to the effect that the whole teaching staff of the nation would be rendered obsolete, that the natural reaction may well have been to doubt whether these two new mediums were really of much educational value at all. Anything that tends to show that this is not so is therefore of considerable potential influence in moulding the educational development of the country. Thus, interest is deservedly being aroused by an experiment currently carried on in a school in Hemel Hempstead, where tests are being made to find out whether the educational value of the cinema is increased if students are given an insight into the critical and technical fundamentals of film art. Such experiments as these, which, up and down Europe and America, are probably numerous in connection with both cinema and radio, deserve wide publicity; for it is from them that the data are derived which show how the best results may be obtained from these new mediums of education, with the consequent breaking down of such prejudice as still exists.

with adequate financial support, the Society could greatly extend its activities. At the moment, the call for funds exceeds the income, there already being a heavy deficit on the present year's working. In view, however, of the magnificent work which is being done, the Society confidently looks to the public for further monetary support in order that it may continue its war on poverty and disease amongst the poor children of the Colony.

FISHES ARE GREAT TRAVELLERS

By W. P. PYCRAFT

THE realisation that some fishes, at any rate, migrate as birds do, is shown when we speak of the herring season in England; but the nature and the extent of these migrations is by no means generally recognised.

Some fishes, like certain birds, are resident in Britain; but there are some which must perforce migrate either for the sake of food or to find suitable places for spawning. This last season occasions some strange journeys.

The salmon, for instance, leaves the sea for fresh water. And before it can reach a suitable site for mating and the deposition of its eggs, it is often called on to perform gymnastic feats of no mean order. For it must ascend torrential rapids, and leap after leap has to be made before the desired haven is attained.

This sudden change from salt to fresh water is remarkable. And no less so is the fact that the whole sojourn in the river is passed fasting!

Stranger still is the fact that though not hungry it will fall to the lure of the fisherman's "fly."

No one has yet been able to explain this eccentric behaviour.

When the salmon has mated, and the eggs are laid, the return journey to the sea is made.

Visitors to the Cornish coast during the summer will see something of the pilchard-fishing. For this fish then haunts our southern coast for food, having already spawned at sea.

The young, emerging from the egg in mid-water, for the most part migrate to the west coast of France, where they are caught in large numbers to provide us with "sardines," for the sardine, it is perhaps not generally known, is not a distinct species but a pilchard in the immature stage.

Migrations of the herring, on which vast numbers of men depend for a living, and which furnish no small part of our food-supply, are more complicated than at one time was supposed. Some, like the Loch Fyne herring, do not migrate; others, which do, are now found to be of two races, a summer and a winter-spawning race.

Each comes shorewards to lay its eggs in the estuaries. It is the summer-herring which affords the most important fisheries along the coasts of Scotland and England.

Why holiday-makers see so little of the huge shoals of herring and mackerel on their migrations is easily accounted for, since these fish rest in the deep water by day and come to the surface to feed at night on the minute crustacea which then come up in incredible swarms.

But the case is different with the "sea," or horse-mackerel, which sometimes appear off our coasts in vast numbers.

One case is on record where, from any given spot on the route, they could be seen passing in such mighty hosts that, from above, they looked like one black mass. They were preying on herring-fry.

That giant of the mackerel tribe, the tunny, appears in the Mediterranean in early summer in huge numbers. But it makes no spectacular display on arrival, their presence being demonstrated by fishermen conversant with their habits.

With great nets, sometimes several miles in length, they intercept the migrants. As the nets are hauled in the fish are speared or clubbed and run ashore to be "canned."

Of late years they have afforded an exhilarating sport to anglers in the North Sea, off Yorkshire. Special tackle, however, and enormous hooks have to be used when tunny are taken with a rod, and they give their captor an exciting and strenuous time.

But the most wonderful of all fish migrations is that of the fresh-water eel, which reverses the habit of the salmon and goes to the sea to spawn. About no fish has there been so much mystery as that which surrounds the spawning of the eel.

But some thirty years ago this mystery was cleared up. As the time for spawning approaches the eels congregate in shoals. Such as live in isolated ponds make their way overland, through the wet grass, at night, to the nearest river.

In Norfolk they have been seen swarming among the rushes that fringe the banks in such enormous numbers that the larger fish were thrusting the smaller half out of the water.

It is a mad rush, this journey to the sea, and it is the longest journey any fish is known to make on a similar errand.

The eels head for the Western Atlantic, south-east of Bermuda, some 3,000 miles distant, and here, at a depth of about 100 fathoms, they lay their eggs—and die!

Even more strange seems the history of the larval eels emerging from these eggs, for they have to find their way back to the rivers which their parents left.

The journey takes about three years, and they undergo a great transformation in its course. Minute, transparent, shaped like a willow leaf, they feed on microscopic organisms and having attained to a length of about three inches, they begin to grow smaller!

This is because the mouth has to be "closed for alterations" and so, for a time, they must fast, life being sustained by absorbing some of the substance of the body.

But just before they enter our rivers they have gained their new-modelled jaws, and they ascend the rivers in vast swarms.

There is something uncanny about this 3,000-mile journey of the infant prodigies. Though they are borne along by the kindly Gulf Stream, which sets out from the Gulf of Mexico across the Atlantic, there must be some subtle "urge" within them, developing what we may call a "thirst for fresh water." This causes them to follow up its first traces until the river is found.

But the journey is not yet ended. They disperse as they go along, and thousands, with wonderful water-divining power, make their way out of the water, at night, to crawl through the grass and find the ponds and ditches left by their parents when they set out to fulfil the creative urge. There is no story to match this in all the history of fishes.

The Very Idea!

APROPOS WOMEN

Edward Kelly Thinks They Were Born For Love

THINGS, like women, change.

In the days of chivalry, round tables, knights, daze, beautiful women, the flower of love burned brightly on the field of honour.

Feelings were kind and tender. The lowest of any tender was never accepted.

To-day what do we find? Not even a sterling compensation fund.

Once upon a time it used to be chivalry to step off a roadway to let a woman pass.

Now, especially if she's at the wheel of a motor-car, it's not chivalry, but darn common sense.

Gimme the good old days. Lancelot climbs up the grape-vine, tearing a hole in his armour as he catches a nail.

But does he swear?

No! He whistles instead, and at the first pulsating trill, Cynthia shyly creeps out onto the balcony—sorry—balcony.

"Oh, strong and savage man," she cried in an ecstasy of fear, "desiring you with the fierceness of love, wanting you with throbbing tenderness, I yearn for you with bleeding heart. Beloved, my love transcends the immortals. My hero! my knight! my love! Fly to my arms!"

Lancelot flies. Time flies. The scene changes. In this kind of weather the unseen also changes. Everybody changes.

It is now 1935. Lancelot has a frail.

"Kid," he says, "you and the Hongkong heat have got me hot and bothered. I gotta have you, baby. What's the use of stallin' like this? Let's go visit th' parson and get hitched. An' take that grin off your face or I'll wipe it off."

Cyn. nestles closer to him.

"Watta man!" she murmurs, "whatta man! Why don't you come up 'n' see muh sometime."

In the olden days married women wore nothing but plain gold wedding rings. After they abandoned the loose leaf system they started wearing clothes as well.

Nowadays, brides are not content unless they can get platinum hoops. We once knew a chap who gave his girl a brass wedding ring. She thought it was gold.

Imagine her embarrassment.

But girls in Hongkong are like that. They're as hard as iron. The irony of it.

There's two classes of women in Hongkong. Those who need petting, and those who need chloroforming. Those who need petting apply to us. Those who need chloroforming apply to the others.

If there's one thing we don't like it's a woman who nags.

Two things we don't like are two women who nag.

The last key to our ignition was like that. In America they'd call her a speakasee.

Speaking of speakasees, can't sign chits at the Hotel we're off out to Shing Mun Mr. Gifford Hull. If he a bottle of whisky had drink his reservoir.

As reservoir!

"Why pay $12 a day to stay here, if you can't stay awake and enjoy it?"

Make-shift kitchens have sprung up all over the large area in Pootung, Shanghai, where some 700 huts were destroyed by fire. Some 2,000 people of the coolie class were rendered homeless and minus any belongings.

MCCARRAN REFORM PASSES

SENATE WOULD KILL PROFITS TAX

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Aug. 15. The Senate to-day passed the McCarran amendment repealing the 60 per cent. profits tax on silver transactions, which is a feature of the Silver Act.

Senator Thomas said: "I will serve my notice that if the McCarran amendment is killed by the Conference Committee and I will have some remarks to make when the Bill is returned to the Senate."

Senator Thomas complained that the Treasury had failed to conform to the Senators' understanding, namely "that the object of the Silver Act was to raise the price of silver. It is useless to buy a lot of silver merely to use as token money. The present policy will only injure the people in the silver States who expected a firm policy. They have opened mines and now it appears as though the silver price might decline below fifty cents after Congress adjourns," he said.

By a vote of 40 to 39 the Senate passed Senator Borah's amendment to the Tax Bill forbidding the issuance of Federal Tax-exempt securities.—United Press.

TO STUDY EFFECTS

Washington, Aug. 15. Senator Key Pittman has introduced a resolution in the Senate authorising the appointment of a special committee of five to confer with Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, to study the effect of America's silver buying policy in the United States and abroad.

Senate approval of the resolution is expected.—Reuter.

SILVER REVIEW

London, Aug. 15. Messrs. Mocatta and Goldsmid in their silver review for the past week say:

There has been a complete change in the complexion of the market and stability of the "spot" position has been broken.

On August 12, the dollar weakened and this was thought to be the possible cause for the American buying limit being lowered by one-sixteenth. It induced heavier selling from India and China and the volume became so great that America lowered her buying price further. Eastern speculators then took fright and yesterday the figures reached enormous proportions.

Selling on such a scale cannot continue, of course, for long, and it will be interesting to see what the United States will do when it ceases.

Stocks of silver in London are estimated at 30,000,000 ounces, compared with 55,000,000 ounces the previous week.—Reuter.

REFRESHER COURSES

AIDS FOR BRITISH TEACHERS

London, Aug. 15. The London County Council is again arranging an extensive programme of lectures and "refresher courses" to enable teachers in the Council's schools to keep abreast with educational developments and widen their outlook on literary and humanistic subjects which make the background for their teaching.

During the autumn months a number of distinguished speakers will deliver lectures, including Sir William Rothenstein, Mr. Eric Gill and Mr. Richard Sickert, Mr. F. S. Smythe, leader of the British Himalayan expedition in 1931 and a member of the Everest Expedition in 1933, Lord Passfield and Sir E. Denison Ross. The Secretary for India, Lord Zetland, will give an address on "India and the New Constitution" with the Chairman of the L.C.C., Lord Snell, presiding.

The European situation will be discussed in a series of lectures by the historian, Dr. G. P. Gooch.—British Wireless.

MILK MARKET SCHEME

PRODUCERS' POLL CLOSES

London, Aug. 15. The poll of 160,000 milk producers, which has been proceeding on the question of the continuance of the milk marketing scheme, closes to-day, and it is expected that the result will be known early next week.

It is generally anticipated that the voting will show a considerable majority in favour of continuation. When the ballot on the draft marketing scheme was taken in 1933 the majority in favour was 66 per cent.—British Wireless.

POLICE FLYING CLUB

London, Aug. 15. Suggestions for a Flying Club for members of the Metropolitan Police Force have been approved by the Commissioner, Lord Trenchard.

The Club would be self-supporting and would not be used as part of the official police organisation, but every member would have an opportunity of qualifying as a pilot. No definite scheme has been prepared until it is seen what support the proposal obtains in the Force.—British Wireless.

HITLER WANTS PEACE

PLANS WAR VETERANS' UNION

Berlin, Aug. 15. It is learned that one factor in the dissolution of the Steel Helms is Hitler's ambition to safeguard world peace through co-operation between World War veterans.

His plan envisages a coordinated non-political union of veterans co-operating with similar groups abroad.—United Press.

She is a motor vessel of smart appearance with one low streamlined funnel, rounded stem and cruiser stern. There will be accommodation for 300 first class and 500 cabin class passengers.

Two destroyers of the Admiralty's 1933 programme, named Greyhound and Griffin, were launched at Vickers Armstrong's works at Barrow. KNOCKED DOWN BY TRAMCAR

MR. JOHN ROBERTSON INJURED

Mr. John Robertson, of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company, received a nasty injury to his head yesterday when he was knocked down by a tramcar at the junction of Pedder Street and Des Voeux Road Central.

The accident occurred at about 7 p.m., Mr. Robertson being in the company of Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, Mr. Justice Lindsell and another European gentleman. The party were about to cross the road near the traffic beacon, but stopped to let a tramcar get past. Mr. Robertson then attempted to cross the road, but was not aware of the approach of another tramcar from the opposite direction. He tried to retrace his steps, but was knocked down, and fell between the two cars. Both trams were proceeding slowly at the time, and stopped immediately.

Mr. Robertson was helped into a rickshaw and taken to the Colonial Dispensary, where he was attended to by Dr. Ho. He received a nasty cut on the back of his head.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, Aug. 15. The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market:—Stocks to-day were dull and irregular and traders were cautious. Oil issues were strong. However, selective buying in other departments resulted in a spotty showing. Bonds were irregular. Government issues were sold heavily. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were irregularly higher, led by utility and oil issues.

S. C. & F. New York office cables:—The market was moderately active yesterday. There was no urgent selling, though demand was cautious. The Caterpillar Tractor Company earned $451,551 during July against $315,851 during July of last year. The Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation earned 7 cents per share for the quarter ended June 30th, against 3 cents per share during the corresponding quarter of last year. The International Nickel Co. has earned 34 cents per share for the quarter ended June 30th, against 31 cents per share last year. The J. C. Penney Company earned 74 cents per share for the 6 months ended June 30th, against 87 cents last year. Brokers' Loans during the week totalled $873,000,000 as compared with $860,000,000 the previous week.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:—Cotton: The statement is attributed to Secretary Wallace that may be something will be said regarding a long season and further unofficial rumours of a 12-cents loan. Market news is largely professional and the same character is probable pending an official announcement.

Wheat: There was continued hedging on advances with no follow up. It is reported that the Government has authorized a 10 per cent further increase in acreage.

Corn: Near positions were strong. There was no indication that the cash position would ease soon to follow up. It is reported that the Government has authorized a 10 per cent further increase in acreage.

Rubber: Consumption by manufacturers during July totalled 36,384 tons. Arrivals last month amounted to 46,880 tons; stocks totalled 330,528 tons and rubber allot amounted to 40,018 tons.

Silk: The volume of business is sharply reduced. The market acts tired and caution is advisable.

NEW YORK CLEANED

POLICE RAID UNSAVOURY HAUNTS

New York, Aug. 15. Following a number of recent assaults and robberies under cover of darkness, 600 police, in accordance with the orders of Mayor La Guardia scoured the Parks and other unsavoury districts and arrested 75 vagrants and suspects on charges of disorderly conduct. The prisoners congested the Night Court, which adjourned after 125 defendants had been sentenced, each to two days imprisonment.—Reuter Special Service.

YORKSHIRE CRICKETERS WELL ON WAY TO TITLE

TEN WICKET WIN FROM DERBY

INCREASES LEAD CONSIDERABLY

FIVE MATCHES TO BE PLAYED

London, Aug. 15. Yorkshire is well on her way to regaining the County Cricket championship which she lost last season to Lancashire when she suffered seriously from the absence of many of her leading players, whose services were required for England against the Australians.

The demands made upon the Northern county this season have been equally heavy but Yorkshire has managed to win her matches by convincing margins nevertheless. In many instances only two days have been taken to subdue the opposition.

In the last match in which the County has been engaged Yorkshire continued in winning vein and severely thrashed Derbyshire, her nearest rivals, by no less a margin than ten wickets at Scarborough.

There was no outstanding performance by any one particular player but each did his share and when Yorkshire went to the wickets a total of 304 was reached.

E. R. T. HOLMES SELECTED

FOR FINAL TEST AT OVAL

London, Aug. 15. It is announced that the Surrey captain, E. R. T. Holmes, has been invited to replace C. F. Walters in England's Test team which is to meet the South African cricketers in the fifth and final match at the Oval tomorrow.—Reuter.

player but each did his share and when Yorkshire went to the wickets a total of 304 was reached. Then the bowlers came to the aid of the County by dismissing Derbyshire for 133 runs to enable the follow-on to be enforced. In her second innings Derbyshire made 174.

Yorkshire then went to the wickets to score five runs without loss. Yorkshire has five more matches to play before the close of the season, but she has now established such a commanding lead that there seems little doubt of her ultimate success.

On Saturday she meets Middlesex at Leeds and her remaining matches are against Worcestershire at Worcester, Surrey at the Oval, Sussex at Hove and Hampshire at Portsmouth.—Reuter.

GIANTS, TIGERS AND YANKEES

SOME HEAVY SCORING

New York, Aug. 15. Both leading teams in the Baseball leagues in America, the New York Giants and the Detroit Tigers, won their matches today, as also did the Yankees.

The Giants were pitted against their nearest rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals, and they won by the narrowest of margins.

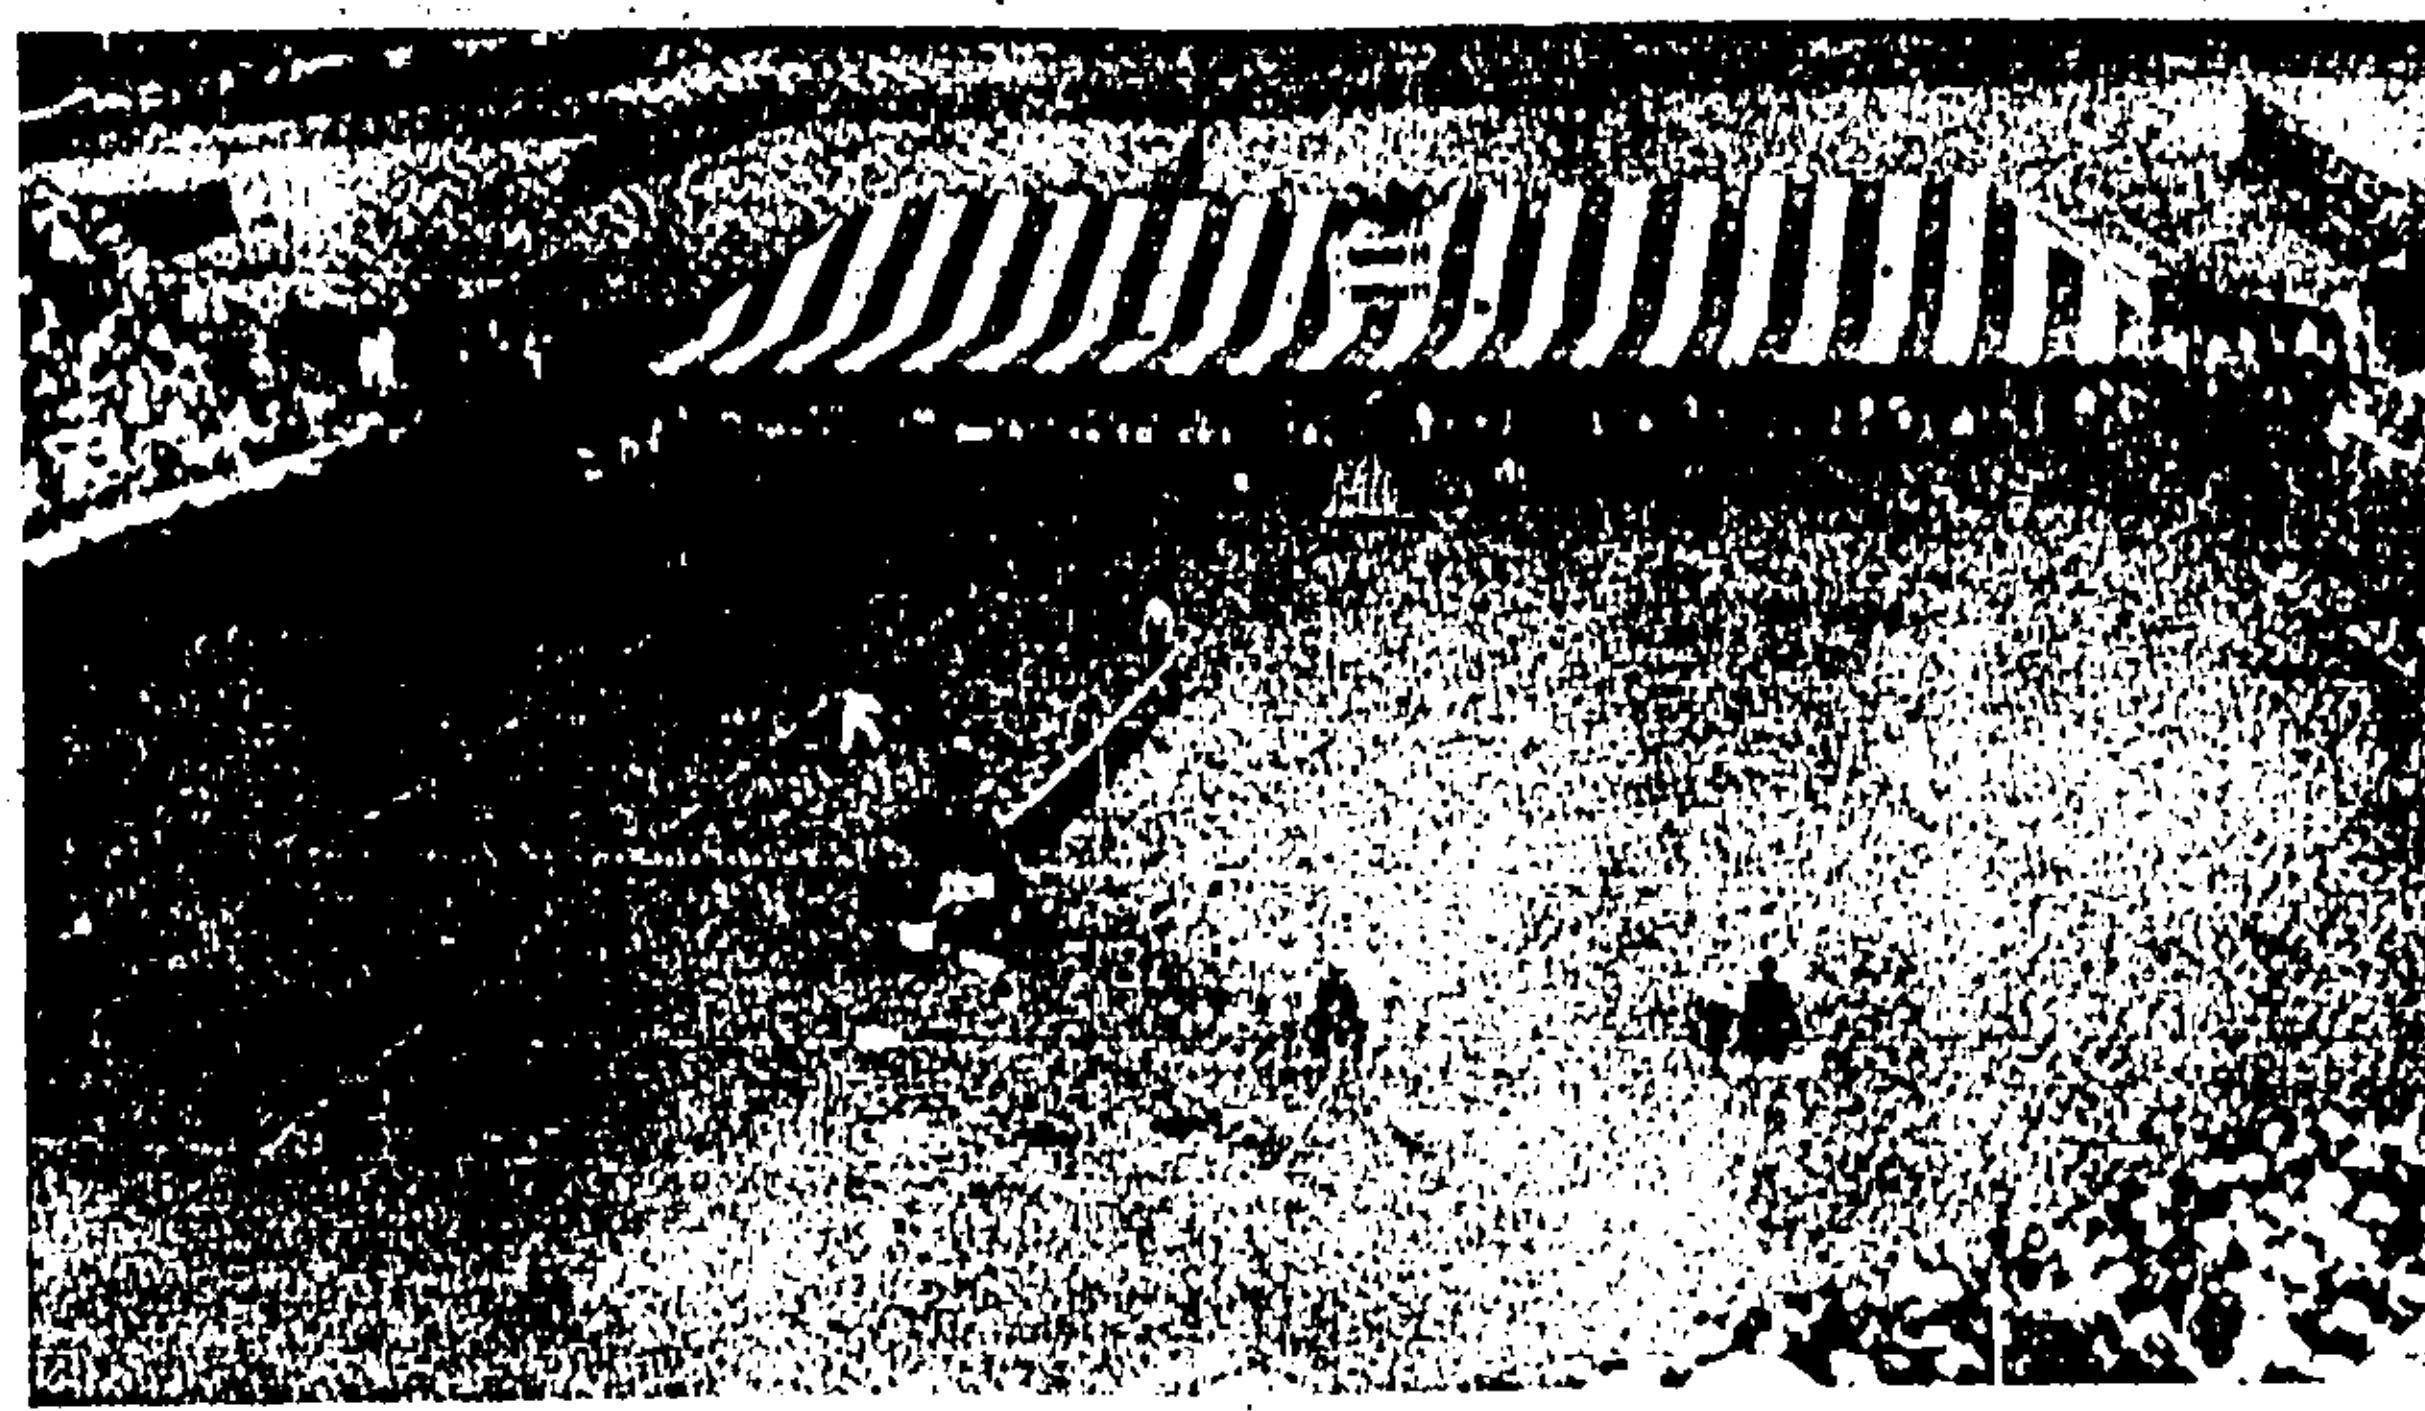

The Detroit Tigers, leaders of the American League, outplayed the Senators and scored six runs to their opponents' three, while the New York Yankees won by 3-1 against the Cleveland Indians. There were some easy victories in the National League in which the Braves beat the Reds by 8-0, the Phillies won from the Pirates by 9-1 and the Cubs trounced the Dodgers by 11-3.

FOOTBALL ENGLAND TO MEET SCOTLAND

JUBILEE TRUST FUND

(By Frank M. Carruthers)

The new football season is to have a fine start with an honest-to-goodness international match between England and Scotland.

Some time ago I mentioned that the match was contemplated, and it has now been arranged to take place in Glasgow on Wednesday, August 21.

The Scottish authorities were disappointed that at the end of last season they were unable to make an adequate contribution to the Jubilee Trust Fund owing to their tour in America. The best they could do was to arrange for an Anglo-Scottish team to play an English side at Highbury.

The match which has now been fixed, however, will be between the best teams of the two countries, and it is sure to make a big appeal.

BROWN AND DUNCAN WIN

IN SINGLES LAWN BOWLS TOURNAMENT

PROGRESS IN THE CHAMPIONSHIPS

On the Civil Service C.C. green, J. C. Brown, of the Kowloon B.G.C. defeated W.K. Way, of the Craigen-gower C.C. by 21 shots to 16. When Brown scored eight shots on the first three heads, it looked as if it might be a run-away affair, but Way fought back strongly to claim the next three heads although he totalled only four.

Blanking out his opponent for five heads running, Brown increased his lead to 17-5 on the thirteenth head. On the sixteenth head the score was 18-8 in favour of Brown, but on the nineteenth, it was only 18-14.

The game ended on the 22nd head with the score at 21-16 for Brown. On the Club de Recoilo green, J. Duncan, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, defeated A. Macfarlane, of the Hongkong Football Club, by 21 shots to 14. Both players gave a good display but Macfarlane was inclined to be inconsistent, falling off towards the end just when he was about to turn the tables on his opponent who was then leading by one shot.

With the exception of the 16th and 17th heads, when he allowed Macfarlane to get within striking distance, Duncan bowled exceedingly well and thoroughly deserved to win. The match ended on the 20th head.

A NARROW WIN FOR A. DAILEY

DUNLOP-SOUTHERN TOURNAMENT

WINS GOLF TITLE BY ONE STROKE

(By F. J. C. PIGNON)

Allan Dailey, a young St. Andrews golfer, professional to the Wanstead Club, Essex, gained a magnificent victory in the Dunlop-Southern 150 professional tournament at Hendon.

He won the 36-holes stroke competition with a total of 139, a round of 69 giving him his success by a single stroke from Charles Whitcombe (Crews Hill), the Ryder Cup captain, and Percy Alliss (Beaconsfield).

Dailey was hailed as a coming champion about two years ago, but since that time he has suffered from ill-health and lack of practice. Now he is striking the ball beautifully. He declared, "I am swinging the club well for the first time for months and have regained confidence."

MISJUDGED

Dailey played so well that he should have won by a greater margin. His iron shots and putts were accurate, but at two short holes he took four through misjudged irons.

Immediately in front of him Percy Alliss had finished with a total of 140. He had struggled to do a round of 72, but had been able to get a three at the home hole he would have won. He took three putts and a five instead.

S. F. Brews, of South Africa, and Abe Mitchell, playing together, had each returned fine scores of 69, but they were out of it because of their first-round scores.

Only Charles Whitcombe had much chance of catching Dailey. Whitcombe went straight from an operation by an osteopath upon his foot for a misplaced bone. "I do not think I can play well to-day; I feel afraid that the bone may slip again," he said and he played that kind of golf.

In the end he was beaten by inches. He needed to accomplish the last three holes in ten strokes to win. At the 16th his putt for three lipped the hole and stopped an inch or two away. At the 17th his putt for three stopped an inch short.

A long drive to the 18th was bunkered, but Whitcombe was no more than eight yards from the hole in two. He putted boldly, but the ball did not drop. He had put up a brave fight against a handicap of which few spectators knew.

Twelve Day Bridge Test Match Next

AMERICAN TEAM'S NEW SYSTEM

INTERNATIONAL MATCH

Four men—two from England versus two from America—were going to play contract bridge for six hours a day for six days a week for a fortnight.

Play starts on Monday, August 19. They will play 150 rubbers. They will play for a stake of £500—which means for each member of the winning team between £17 and £18 a day.

This will be the first international match of rubber—not duplicate—bridge ever played. Unless one side wins by at least 5,000 points the match will be declared "No contest."

The sides are:—England—Harry St. John Ingram and Stanley E. Hughes. America—Michael T. Gottlieb and Howard Shenken.

"PROFILE" PLAY

Ingram and Hughes writes The Daily Express bridge Correspondent, played second pair for England in the last Schwab trophy, when the team only just lost to Ely Culbertson. They are a combination of forceful calling by Ingram, precise inference from Hughes, and on occasion—inspired bluff by both.

Ingram is tall, broad, tanned—as if his sport were tennis, not bridge. He plays with an affection of carelessness. He plays bridge as John Barrymore plays on the screen—largely in profile.

Hughes is slim, pink-cheeked, spectacled. His voice is a whisper lest he betray his hand either to opponents (bad business) or partner (sharp practice). The deftness of his gestures contrasts with Ingram's spaciousness.

Gottlieb is dark, suave, astute. Sir Guy Domville, the English international, who has played against him, regards him as the finest American player he has met.

THE "FOUR ACES"

He is the captain and Shenken is a member of the team calling themselves the "Four Aces" which have been U.S. champions for two years and have won eleven out of the last thirteen competitions for which they have entered.

The U.S. pair will play a system of their own—the "Four Aces" system. It has a forcing bid of two of a suit, and is an amplification with many refinements of the "strong two" most people play in England.

The English pair are to play the "one club." This means that a call of "one club" may be called on any club holding from five honours to a void suit.

(By "Sagan")

For the second time in three years B. W. Bradbury, the Craigen-gower C. C. player, has beaten C. G. Silva, of the Club de Recoilo, to qualify for the last eight of the Open Singles Lawn Bowls Championship. Yesterday he won against the Portuguese representative by a margin of 21 shots to nine, securing a slightly easier victory than he did in 1933 when he entered the quarter finals by a score of 23 shots to 15.

With his victory of two years ago still fresh in his mind, Bradbury entered upon yesterday's match full of confidence of being able to repeat the success but although he has gone far in the tournaments in previous years it was not generally anticipated that he would eliminate Silva, let alone by such a convincing margin as twelve shots. The match was actually ended on the fifteenth head, there being three fours scored during the course of the game.

Bradbury maintained a much better standard of play than did his opponent and was a deserving winner. He was drawing more accurately and was able to find the green quicker than Silva, who was never able to gauge the green with any degree of certainty. He was invariably narrow and also had a tendency to be short.

On the first three heads of the match only singles were scored. Bradbury claiming two and Silva one, but on the fourth head Bradbury out-drew his opponent and lay three good shots, Silva being heavy in an attempt to break up the head. He had met with early success with heavy shots when, on the first head, he had dislodged two counters when Bradbury had been lying three and this apparently gave him encouragement to drive.

BRADBURY'S EARLY LEAD

Silva is well-known for his driving but yesterday he was not as accurate as he has been in rink matches and paid the penalty whenever he missed his objective. Bradbury went into a 7-1 lead on the sixth head but Silva scored a two and then a four to make the scores 7-7. In securing the possible count he had to trail the jack and at the same time bump Bradbury's counter into the ditch. Bradbury might easily have saved a couple but he was hopelessly short with his last wood.

However, the Craigen-gower C.C. player dominated the game from the ninth head when he registered a two. When he drew four shots on the twelfth head Bradbury was playing by far the better bowls. Silva was short with three of his woods and through with the fourth.

DOUBLES MATCH IN DAVIS CUP

SPORTSMANSHIP OF VON CRAMM

WIN FOR AMERICA AT WIMBLEDON

(By STANLEY N. DOUST)

London, July 24. U.S.A. lead Germany by two rubbers to one in the inter-zone final of the Davis Cup as the result of winning one of the most exciting and fluctuating doubles ever played in the competition, when W. Allison and J. Van Ryn beat G. von Cramm and K. Lund by 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, 8-6.

Nothing but the tigerish fighting spirit of the Americans, Allison's inspired play when the Germans had two match points in the fourth set, and Van Ryn's quiet and effective play in the fifth set, when the Germans had three more match points, saved the situation.

Yet von Cramm was the hero of the match. Lund did his job of serving and smashing magnificently, but his return of the service and close volleying were the cause of the Germans losing.

When they had picked up from 1-4 down in the final set and with a burst of brilliance that bewildered the Americans went to 6-4 and at 6-5 were 15-40 on Van Ryn's service. Lund, instead of going for an attacking return, lobbed weakly and the ball was crashed back to von Cramm's feet.

Von Cramm was wonderful. He made one bad stroke in the first three sets and had been strongly supported by Germany who would have won.

WONDERFUL CHANGE

But that fifth set! After their escape in the fourth set the Americans braced themselves and brilliantly outplayed the Germans to lead by 4-1.

Lund here rallied, and von Cramm, playing like the genius he is, and using his head magnificently, won the next four games in a row. Five-four to Germany.

This wonderful change came like a flash.

The Germans had the match in their grasp, but then came Lund's weak return of the service. Von Cramm, taking courage in both hands, went all out, but failed.

Von Cramm, in the tense atmosphere, never forgot his sporting instinct. He needed one point for game to lead at 7-6. A sharp rally, and then Allison drove a ball that was called "out" by the linesman, but von Cramm signalled that the ball had touched the top of his racket. The Germans lost that game and the next for a match that was played in the greatest possible sporting spirit.

The score was then 14-9 and a single and a two made it 17-9.

On the last head Bradbury again drew four shots around the jack with Silva being heavy with two woods and short with a third. Instead of drawing to save with his last wood Silva drove but struck his own short wood and conceded a four to give Bradbury the match.

TWO DOMINIONS AT CRICKET

South Africans And The Australians

(By R. Abbit)

CHAPTER XI
SOUTH AFRICA AND AUSTRALIA

It is with some diffidence that this chapter is set down, as it may be thought rather outside the interest of the majority of readers. But though these articles have never claimed to be anything but a skeleton account of South African cricket, it seems a pity to leave certain of the bones missing, and so far as is possible the account of the cricket relationship between our two Dominions will be kept to a bare outline. As regards the earlier cricket, the lack of records demands a very sketchy treatment; while the somewhat more detailed review of the South African tour in Australia and New Zealand in 1931-2 is, perhaps, excusable on the grounds that the personnel of the team, and their doings, are of great interest with reference to the present visit to England. In fact, the whole series of articles has been intended to set as a background to this visit, and to make this more varied, I am adding in the next chapter a good deal of information about the local situation after the Spring of 1932. After all, those who don't like it can always skip it!

THE EARLIEST MEETING

As was written in an earlier chapter, the South African eleven of 1901 was a much better one than it was popularly held to be, and it was more or less available when Joe Darling's magnificent side, which had won the rubber in England in the Summer of 1902, dropped in to South Africa on their way back. Of the three Test Matches played Australia won the last two easily enough, but in the first they got a bit of a shock when Murray Bisset's men battled so well that there was a perfectly even draw. But the interesting point was that the South Africans garnered further experience of great cricketers which led them along the path to the brilliant side of 1907, of which I have spoken at length.

FIRST VISIT TO AUSTRALIA

In the autumn of 1910 South Africa got together a side which, I believe, for my records are lacking here) was very much the same one that beat the M.C.C. in 1909-10. But the South Africans were just past the crest and the tour ended in failure. Mr. Altham has put it succinctly that "in an orgy of running the South Africans failed occasionally, the Australians never." The result was that Australia won four out of the five Tests. As a matter of fact the key of the trouble was that the goosely—as produced by the famous quartette—simply did not come off on the perfect Australian wickets. Roughly, the same thing happened later in the case of Freeman, who has never been a great success in Australia, though admittedly the parallel is not perfect.

Indeed, Vogler, from his brilliance against England a year before, quite lost his form, and Faulkner had declined into a run-making machine, if one may use the expression. Trumper was at his best and South Africa was beat! But it is doubtful if anyone then realised it was the beginning of the twenty year decline of South African Cricket.

THE TRIANGULAR TEST

It is unnecessary to write at any length of the unfortunate Summer days of 1912. Suffice it to say that South Africa were twice badly beaten by Australia, (after losing three times to England), but had the satisfaction of having the better of the draw in the third game. The only point that deserves notice is that they helped, in hat-trick in each innings—a feat the first Test Match against Australia to make Test Match history, as their batsmen allowed Matthews to do the hat-trick in each innings—a feat which will no doubt stand as a record for many a long year. Parenthetically, it is very interesting to note that in each innings Matthews took three wickets and no more!

THE LATEST VENTURE

Once more South Africa ventured forth against Australia in the winter of 1931-32. After their success in the previous season against England, much was hoped from the tour. But the result was a sad set-back, which, as we now know, was destined to be temporary only. The team was made up of sixteen players, besides the Manager, and was captained by H. B. Cameron who had been in charge of the last two Test Matches against England in the 1931-32 contest. The experience gained would, one would have thought, make it certain that Cameron would be skipper of this year's side. But as is now known, Wade has been preferred. I do not know the exact reason. Possibly the severe reverses in Australia may have cast some doubt as to his ability, or possibly there was some trouble in South Africa Inter. There had been something wrong for a year or two, as witness the refusal of Deane to play in the first Test Match. But to resume. Of the team that went to Australia, seven players are in Wade's team—Cameron, Balaskas, Bell, Dalton, Bruce Mitchell, Viljoen and Vincent.

A MEDIOCRE RECORD

There were twenty-one matches included in their programme, of which five were played out of Australia proper, two in Tasmania, and three in New Zealand. Of these nine were won, six drawn and six lost. They did fairly well in their "statute" games as the only one they lost was against Victoria. Their success in the five matches out of Australia was great for they beat Tasmania once, Auckland once and all New Zealand twice, drawing one game against Tasmania. But the fact was that after the success against England in their previous season, the South African cricketers were very hopeful of beating, or, at least holding their own, with the full strength of Australia. It was, therefore, a great blow to find themselves just crumpled up and thrown away. It seems that they developed a definite complex about Bradman and Grimmett. The appearance of the former was the signal for the bowlers to lose their length, while when Grimmett went on the batsmen became hypnotized and in many cases had a blind goal at him. The result was that while they had in 1910-11 failed chiefly because their bowling did not come off on Australian wickets, in 1931-32 they did far worse from sheer bad cricket. The result was that they lost all the five Test Matches, three by an innings, one by ten wickets, and one by 169 runs. To revert to a comparison which I have used before, I will quote the leading bowling figures. It is remarkable how few Australian wickets fell—

AUSTRALIA—

	O.	M.	R.	W.	Av.
Brannan	222	112	300	31	9.67
Grimmett	205	104	357	33	10.81
T. W. Wall	129	58	255	13	20.46

SOUTH AFRICA—

	O.	M.	R.	W.	Av.
A. J. Bell	207	24	227	25	23.28
N. A. Quinn	208	44	512	13	39.38
C. L. Vincent	177	29	645	10	64.50

The batting averages are fairly distinctive too, even when one eliminates Bradman's figures—Inns. Runs. H.S. N.O. Av.
5 806 299* 1 201.50.

In the first game the South Africans had rather a disappointing experience as, after Australia had put on 450 (Bradman 266) on a thoroughly good wicket, rain fell after they had got 126 for three. Next day they were all out for 170 and could do no better than 117 in their second innings. Herbert Taylor got over 40 in each knock.

In the second game they did no better, though the weather was not against them, and they won the toss. They scored 153 and 161, in between the two innings Australia made 469. Bradman only got 112 this time.

A BETTER FIGHT

The South Africans in the first innings of the third Test got rid of Woodfull, Bond and Bradman for seven, seven and two respectively, and put the whole side out for 198. They then proceeded to score 358, thanks in part to a nice century by K. G. Viljoen. Things looked good, until the irrepressible Bradman made 167 and Woodfull 161 and the match was lost by 169 runs. But this grows tedious. In the fourth game they made 308 and 274, but Bradman was not out 290 and a ten wicket victory was the result. In the last match Australia only made 153 and still won by an innings and seventy-two! Bradman incidentally, was hurt early on and took no part in the match.

IN NEW ZEALAND

To conclude on a slightly brighter note, South Africa won the first Test

Match by an innings and twelve runs. Christy and Mitchell put on 196 runs for the first wicket and they totalled 461—with Christy 103 and Mitchell 113 respectively.

In the second Test South Africa won by eight wickets, after a century by Balaskas. It is, by the way, interesting to note that he did quite well with the bat on this tour, while C. L. Vincent kept turning up with thirties (he was 27.00—third in the Australian Test averages), though neither of them has done much in England.

SERIAL STORY

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER I

Janet Hill's grey eyes raised—and lowered hastily. Intently she studied the typewritten sheet that lay before her and intently—a little more severely—than necessary—her fingers tapped out the words on the keys.

It is to be remembered that the purchasing public—

A sudden, impatient gesture and the typing ceased. Janet suppressed exclamation. She had copied the words twice and the page was ruined. Oh, well—what was the use of pretending? No matter how busily at work she might seem there was no stopping the dark figure heading toward the entrance of the office.

The dark figure was that of a young man. He had gained the threshold now and paused.

"Mr. Hamilton around?" Janet looked up. She smiled and the smile was that of a serene, thoroughly businesslike secretary as she answered. "He just stepped out, Mr. Cressy. I think he's in Mr. Chambers' office. If you want to see him—"

The young man in the doorway raised a hand in protest. "No, no—it isn't important. As a matter of fact it was you I wanted to talk to, not Hamilton. That is, if you can spare a moment or two."

"Why, of course?"

The young man slumped against the opposite desk, half-sent himself. He must have been in the later 20s—an average looking young man with sandy hair and agreeable features, a trifle heavy in build, a trifle too well-groomed. He said with a grin, "Seem to be awfully busy in here this morning."

"Not especially. I mean there's always plenty to do."

"But don't you ever think of anything except work?"

Janet moved uncomfortably. It was going to be the same thing all over again! For three successive Saturdays and on several evenings in between she had told Howard Cressy she couldn't accept his invitations for luncheon or dinner. No, not for a movie or a concert or a drive, either. She had used all the excuses from previous engagements to a headache. She couldn't invent a new excuse. Well, she would just use one of the old ones. Why couldn't Howard Cressy take a hint?

"Mr. Hamilton seems to be able to keep everyone busy," she countered. "But you don't work Saturday afternoons, do you? You don't have to work to-night. How about taking a little drive out on the Madison road? There's a nice place—"

The girl interrupted. "I'm sorry, Mr. Cressy. I won't be able to go. I'm having a guest this evening and I'll have to go home and cook dinner."

"So you can cook! Beauty and brains and the domestic arts! But aren't you going to invite me to one of these dinner parties? Don't I ever get a break, Janet?"

She was saved from making an answer. A rustle of papers, the sound of footsteps and Bruce Hamilton—broad-shouldered, tuxedo-clad, his eyes framed in dark spectacles—appeared in the doorway. Hamilton looked like a college professor. Only when he dictated letters in a brisk, staccato voice, when he barked commands into the telephone or when he flared into stormy arguments did he suddenly become the shrewd, tireless and dominating manager of Every Home Magazine.

Hamilton's dark hair was mixed with grey but the eyes beneath that pepper and salt that were young and challenging. Hamilton walked with a light step. Evidently the conference had come off as he wanted it.

The younger man had risen to his feet. He said quickly, "Oh, Mr. Hamilton, I've just had an answer from Fairbanks. He likes the idea of the contest. Think it will be a big circulation builder and want to go in for it strong. Here's his letter if you'd like to read it."

"Thanks," Hamilton took the letter. He laid half a dozen sheets of yellow paper on Janet's desk and said, "Miss Hill, I've made some revisions in that copy. Sorry to ask you to work overtime but it has to get off in the first mail. Make two carbon copies, please. And will you start it at once and let the letters and that Bailey memorandum wait?"

"Yes, Mr. Hamilton."

"Now, then, Cressy—"

JANET HILL

reckless pace that would have meant errors. The dark keys flew up and down with rhythmic, machine-like precision.

She didn't notice how frequently Howard Cressy's glance wandered from the advertising manager's desk to the brown head of the advertising manager's secretary. It was forbidden. Almost any young man would have done the same.

Janet Hill wasn't a beauty—not in the breath-taking, sensational sense of the word. Janet's grey eyes were not the sort to do hypnotic tricks when a man looked at her. They were level eyes, fringed with dark lashes and they looked out on the world in a friendly, confident way. They were practical eyes and the broad forehead above them was practical, too. Janet had cheeks and a throat like cream and her lips were the dark, rich hue of ripe cherries. It was unusual to see such creamy skin with grey eyes but any artist would have told you it was exactly right with the waving, light brown hair that glinted copper in the sunlight. Right, too, was the well-molded chin, the nose and generous lips.

And then, just when one had catalogued Janet's features and decided that here was a girl who was attractive and pleasant and sensible, one saw the freckles. Almost a dozen of them scattered across the cheeks. A dozen small but perfectly visible freckles of the same golden brown as Janet's hair. Somehow the freckles discounted the matter-of-factness of that businesslike young face. They were likely to make you wonder how Janet Hill looked when she smiled. They made you want to wait and see.

She was 23 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and for two years she had taken dictation, typed letters, made appointments, executed errands and done a hundred and one other secretarial duties in the offices of Every Home Magazine. All this is necessary to a complete picture of Janet Hill but all this is, after all, quite minor. The one important thing to know about Janet was that she was engaged to Rolf Carlyle.

That, at least, was the way Janet looked at it.

They had been engaged for almost a year, yet the mention of Rolf's name was enough to set her heart beating a swift, exciting tattoo. That warming and quickening that made Janet wonder if all the world understood how she felt about Rolf—and blush at the thought.

It was being engaged to Rolf that made Howard Cressy's continued attentions so annoying. It was being engaged to Rolf that made working after hours—especially on Saturday—distasteful. But it was being engaged to Rolf, too, that had made the world a paradise Janet Hill had never imagined it could be, that made the once ordinary city of Lancaster suddenly the earth's garden spot, that made Janet Hill's hitherto commonplace existence a state of ecstasy beyond anything she had ever dreamed.

Oh, yes, it was like that—being engaged to Rolf. Janet was engaged and she was in love.

She and Rolf didn't talk so much about when they were going to be married. They didn't talk about it because it was the one thing that shadowed their dreamy happiness. They wanted to be married and they couldn't because they didn't have the money. That was why Janet sat in Bruce Hamilton's office from 9 o'clock until 5—and often long afterward—five days a week and for half days on Saturdays when she would so much rather have been bustling about a blue and white kitchen of her own. Give up her job to cook and wash dishes and mend and iron clothes? Indeed she would! She'd have been glad to.

WITHOUT PASSPORTS

INDIAN WHO MADE HIMSELF A NUISANCE

Nahar Singh, 29, and Fateh Sher, 29, both appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday charged with entering the Colony without valid passports.

Prosecuting, Detective-Sergeant F. E. Russell stated that Nahar Singh arrived here in 1924 on a permit that was only valid for one year. The certificate was surrendered at the Emigration Office. The Indian then left the Colony remaining in Canton for eight years and in Macao for three years. He returned to Hongkong on July 20 to make arrangements with friends to return to India. He was told to return to Canton and make his arrangements there. Eventually a friend bought him a ticket on the Ginyo Maru and an Indian constable was sent on board to see defendant off. The defendant had apparently got drunk with friends and missed the ship. The friend claimed the ticket money and stated he would have nothing more to do with the defendant.

Sergeant Russell requested the Magistrate to take a serious view of the case as the defendant had caused the police plenty of trouble and had let his friends down. A fine of $30 or one month's hard labour was imposed and an expulsion order made against the man.

Permitted to Stay

Fateh Sher previously came to Hongkong and returned to India on a permit. He was told he could return to Hongkong if he obtained a proper passport. He got the passport but lost it. He came to the Colony on the s.s. Talma in August. The defendant had a good character and good references during his stay of ten years in the Colony. He would be allowed to remain in Hongkong. A fine of $10 was inflicted.

MR. F. A. M. BARRETTO

UNTIMELY DEATH OF YOUNG PORTUGUESE RESIDENT

Unusually distressing circumstances surround the death of a young Portuguese resident of Hongkong, Mr. F. A. M. Barretto, who died from blood poisoning. He had been suffering from a common summer complaint, boils on the face, and was unfortunate enough to have infection enter. Despite the best medical attention he died in the Italian Convent Hospital at 3.45 p.m. yesterday.

Mr. Barretto was only 32 years old. He was a son of the late Mr. F. F. Barretto, formerly of Messrs. Showan Tomes staff. He was employed in the Netherlands Indies Commercial Bank, where he was held in high regard. Apart from his work, his great interest was the Catholic Union Club, of which for years he had been honorary Treasurer, and by whose members he will be greatly missed.

Mr. Barretto leaves to mourn him his mother, his wife (nee Miss B. D. Vas) and two small children, a little girl aged three and a boy, aged one; also a sister, Mr. A. D. Sequiera, and two brothers, Mr. C. A. Barretto of the Great Northern Telegraph Company, and Mr. A. J. Barretto of the Netherlands Indies Commercial Bank.

The funeral will take place this afternoon, passing the Monument at 5.30 p.m. It is requested that no flowers be sent.

Mr. H. M. H. Nemazee
News has been received in the Colony of the death of a former well known member of the local Mohammedan community, Mr. H. M. H. Nemazee who has died at Shiraz, Persia, at the age of 78.

Born in 1857, Mr. Nemazee came out to Hongkong in 1890 as principal of the firm of H. M. H. Nemazee and sons, a post which he held till he retired in 1922, and went back to Shiraz.

However in 1927 and again in 1932 Mr. Nemazee paid visits to the Colony and renewed old friendships made here.

Mr. Nemazee is survived by two sons, Mr. M. Nemazee of Hongkong and Mr. A. Nemazee of Shiraz, with whom great sympathy will be felt in their loss.

MAKING GAS MASKS

CANTON ARMY TO OPEN ITS OWN FACTORY

Canton, Aug. 15. The First Group Army authorities have decided to establish a factory for the manufacturing of gas masks.

A special site for this factory has been selected in Honam. According to the prospectus, all masks should be made with native materials, unless they cannot be obtained in China. The products will not only be supplied to the Army, Navy and Air Force but will be permitted for public sale. It is estimated that the factory will have a daily production of 300 masks.

No less than $600,000 has been appropriated for the building expenses and work is likely to be started in October.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Military Secrets

Canton, Aug. 15. An important and secret order, signed by General Chan Chal-tong, has been circulated to all military authorities, in which General Chan strongly warns that military secrets relating to National defences such as the exact number of military forces, position and plans of different strategic buildings, arsenals, ammunition depots, important schemes and documents of different military organisations, are strictly prohibited from leaking out to foreigners. Any one who gives out such information to foreigners will receive punishment of death.

This action taken by General Chan Chal-tong, yesterday was made following a report submitted by the Military Commission, who recently returned from Europe. The report states that certain foreign authorities possessed military secrets of this Province, which they believed to have been supplied by persons in very close connection with the Military Authorities.

Meanwhile the Government also proclaims rigid regulations prohibiting persons taking photographs and surveying of strategic places, forts, barracks, and aerodromes, without permission from responsible authorities.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

TIMELY DISCOVERY

TUNNEL LEADING FROM TEXAS PENITENTIARY

Huntsville, Texas, Aug. 15. W. W. Wald, warden of the Texas Penitentiary, to-day discovered a tunnel, thirty yards in length reaching almost as far as the penitentiary wall. He has thus believed to have frustrated a planned wholesale prison break. The tunnel entrance was under a wood pile in the centre of the prison yard.—United Press.

SIR B. BLACKETT

KILLED IN MOTOR SMASH IN HESSE

Berlin, Aug. 15. Sir Basil Blackett was killed in a motor smash at a level crossing near Giessen in Hesse.

A local train crashed into the rear of his car as it was crossing the lines.

Sir Basil was unconscious when he was taken from the wreckage and died in hospital.—Reuter.

Basil Philott Blackett, chairman of the Communications Company, was born in Jan. 1882, and educated at Marlborough and University College, Oxford, where he took a first in Litt. Hum. In 1904 he entered the Treasury. His first connection with Indian affairs was in 1913 when he became secretary of the Indian Finance and Currency Commission, serving in a similar capacity on the Capital Issues Committee in 1916. Before the War he was for a time representative of the British Treasury in America.

He went to the United States in Oct. 1914, on a special mission relating to exchange problems arising out of the war and next year was a member of the Anglo-French mission which negotiated the Allied loan of $500,000,000. In 1916 he became a member of the National War Savings Committee. Then from 1917 to 1919 he again represented the Treasury in the U.S. On his return he was appointed Controller of Finance and in 1921 knighted (K.C.B.).

Indian Finance

Blackett renewed his connection with India in 1922, when he was made Finance Member of the Executive Council of the Government—i.e. a post in which he was most successful. When he presented his last Budget in 1928, he had not only got rid of heavy deficits and placed the finances of India in a position of unassailable security, but had presented the provinces with large sums for development, and this without burdening the masses with any extra taxation that could be felt by them. Whereas before his time India was borrowing on a 7 per cent. basis, he enabled her to do so at little above the British Government's level. In spite of great opposition from Bombay interests he secured the stabilisation of the exchange at 1/6 to the general advantage of the trade and finance of the country. He sought to crown his work by his Reserve Bank Bill in which he provided for a central bank for India to be the currency authority in place of the Government, but it was very strongly attacked and was finally wrecked by the Opposition and withdrawn in Feb. 1928. On leaving India Sir Basil Blackett made a tour of Australia, China and Japan.

Big Interests

In Jan. 1929, he was appointed chairman of the Communications Company, the huge wireless and cable combine which merged the British Government and Imperial-owned cables, the Eastern Telegraph group and the Marconi Company, the capitalisation being about $53,000,000. His salary was $8,000 a year. A few days later he was made a director of the Bank of England. He had also been appointed a deputy member of the Expert Committee on Reparations, which involved him in much work that had to be done in his spare time at night, but fortunately he regarded it as a sort of recreation after his organising duties on the Communications Company.

The most noticeable things about him was his charm of manner and his smile which explained his great popularity with his subordinates.

REGISTRY WEDDING

BRIDE ARRIVED BY N. D. L. POTSDAM

The N.D.L. liner Potsdam may become known as the honeymoon ship if it maintains the record it created on its maiden voyage. Two young female travellers who disembarked at Singapore were married immediately after their arrival there.

Another charming traveller who landed here on Tuesday from Europe was married at the Registrar's Office, Supreme Court, yesterday morning. She is Mrs. Edna Bebenia (nee Beneo) who became the bride of Mr. Claude Geoffrey FitzRoy Lloyd of 55, The Peak.

The two brides who were married last week at the Presbyterian Church, Orchard Road, Singapore, by the Rev. William Murray, are Miss Diana Violet Delighton daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Delighton, of Croydon, England, and Miss Carla Maas, of Haarlem, Holland.

Miss Delighton was married to Mr. Otto Richard of Messrs. Gammeter and Co. in Singapore. Gustavo Enrique Musteller, Consul General of Cuba and Dean of the Consular Corps at Batavia.

LUANTUNG MURDER

ARREST ORDER WITHIN A WEEK

Peiping, Aug. 15. In view of the Japanese pressure for an early solution of the Luantung murder case in which Colonel Liu Tau-chow, the officer commanding the Luantung Peace Preservation Corps, was assassinated by Chinese gunmen, the Hopei provincial government has instructed the Peiping police officials and Mr. Yan Yu-kang, of the Peiping Political Council, to arrest the assassins within seven days.

The Hopei government says that the Peiping officials will be severely dealt with if they fail to run down the assassins of Colonel Liu Tau-chow. A Chinese report states that the murderers have escaped to the demilitarised zone.

The Luantung authorities are searching all hospitals at Tangshan and Luantung for the gunmen one of whom was shot during the attack.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Shot Fired in Demilitarized Zone
It is reported that a member of the Chinese Peace Preservation Corps has fired a shot at two Chinese junkies flying the Japanese flag and carrying a party of Japanese Consular and military officials from Chengdeh, in Jehol, down the Lwanho River, in the demilitarised zone.

Nobody was hurt but the Japanese are again taking a serious view of the incident.—United Press.

RUSSIA BUYS FLOUR

Part Payment for C.E.R. In Wheat

Tientsin, Aug. 15. Soviet Russia is reported to be purchasing large quantities of wheat flour from Manchuria. A treaty, recently concluded, provides for 100,000 bags of wheat flour at the price of ¥250,000, which is to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway. As a result of this many idle flour mills have resumed operations.—Central News Agency.

NAVAL CONFERENCE

BRITISH PLAN FOR OCTOBER SESSION

Tokyo, Aug. 15. The Foreign Office refused to say "anything whatever" regarding the Yomiuri Shimbun exclusive London report to the effect that the British Foreign Office on August 11 informally told the Japanese Embassy in London that Britain intended to summon the main naval conference in October in the event of the British, French, and Italian preliminary conversations producing results.

The Yomiuri Shimbun report indicated that Britain desires a conference in order to avoid spending $200,000,000 on its naval construction programme. Meanwhile the Foreign Office doubts that reports were ever circulated at Washington to the effect that Japan would welcome a conference.—United Press.

British Invitation
Tokyo, Aug. 15. Japan has received an invitation from Britain to attend a five-Power naval parley in London in October.—Reuter.

ASSAULT CASE

SUBPOENAED WITNESSES FAIL TO GIVE REASON

Further evidence was taken by Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, in the case in which Chung Ngai-sai, Chan Shuen, Lam Muk-chun, Ching Lam-kun, Young Lam-tai and Chan Kong are summoned by Lam Mo-lung, Chairman of the Chinese National Athletic Association, for alleged assault.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for the prosecution, and defendants were not represented.

Three subpoenaed witnesses, Wong Fook-yu, Wong Pak-hung and Hang Kan-chuen, failed to give any evidence as to the reason why the complainant was allegedly assaulted. On Mr. Thomson's suggestion, Mr. da Silva treated them as hostile witnesses.

Lau Mun-kwong, complainant's nephew, said in evidence that at 8.30 p.m. on July 8, he was at complainant's business address when he and complainant were asked, through the telephone, to visit the Chu Hop Rice de Silva, the case was adjourned.

WAR EXPECTED IN FIVE WEEKS

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Aug. 16, 8.16 a.m.)

Harrai, Aug. 15.

Although Abyssinia is hoping for a peaceful settlement of her dispute with Italy, she is preparing for all eventualities.

The railways and roads from Addis Ababa to Harrai and Dire-dawa show signs of the intensive military preparations with a view to repelling any advance by Italy's war host now camped on the frontiers of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland. The Italian attack is expected in five or six weeks' time, says Reuter's special correspondent.

A garrison of over 25,000 regular and irregular troops is now quartered in the neighbourhood of Harrai while it is estimated that 100,000 troops are lying between Harrai and Jijiga and Geriogubi.

Large quantities of war materials are being concentrated at Jijiga which is regarded as one of the key points of Abyssinia's defences against an Italian offensive.

READY FOR WAR

Army officers, soldiers, peasants, Government officials and tradesmen all express the greatest enthusiasm for a war against Italians, providing the Italians are the aggressors. But it is recognised everywhere that Ethiopia is at present ill-fitted to defend her frontiers.

There are 600 British subjects at Harrai now, the majority of them Indians, and all have been warned to be ready for evacuation to safer points. Many are preparing to seek refuge in British Somaliland.—Reuter Special.

U. S. SYMPATHISERS

Geneva, Aug. 15.

A petition urging that "Ethiopia by the League from the International Council of Friends of Ethiopia, of Harlem, New York, on behalf of the millions of blacks in America.

The petition declares that the question of Ethiopia's protection is one of sacred honour and human duty. They claim that if the Christian nations stand by and see Abyssinia attacked by Italy it will be "a hollow mockery of their professions of Christianity."—

AMERICAN DEFENCE STRATEGY

NEW NAVAL PORTS IN PACIFIC?

AEROPLANE BASES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Aug. 15.

Naval experts here to-day indicated that a series of closed port areas in the Pacific may shortly be added to the "restricted" districts within America's defence zone.
These ports may include Wake and Midway Islands, with a waiver permitting the Pan-American Airways Corporation to use them.

At present there are only four closed ports on the Pacific, Pearl Harbour, Guam, Subic Bay in the Philippines, and Kiska in Alaska.

President Roosevelt has not "closed" the Aleutian Islands ports, but has merely forbidden civil aviation development there.

It is indicated that when the naval treaties expire, the United States may establish naval stations at Midway and Wake Islands which are half-way between Hawaii and Guam, which are already naval ports. These may become bases when the Philippines are relinquished.

It is pointed out that developments at Midway and Wake Islands give Army and Navy aeroplanes stepping stones across the Pacific, while the development of air bases in the Aleutians 2,822 miles northwest of Guam and 2,185 miles northwest of Hawaii, would give these two ports aerial flank protection.—

DREADED STREICHER LEADS CAMPAIGN

CHILDREN OF THE DEVIL

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Mes-

Streicher is editor of the Sturmer, a newspaper which accused the Jews of ritual murder.
He will address a gathering at which 25,000 Nazis will attend.
The meeting starts at 8.30 p.m. at the Sports Palace, where all space has been sold out.

A simultaneous meeting is being held in another hall and tickets for admission are four pence each.

there are 500,000 registered Jews in Germany, of which 160,000 are in Berlin.—Reuter Special.

CHILDREN OF DEVIL

Berlin, Aug. 15.

A huge Nazi meeting in support of the anti-Jewish campaign was held in the sports palace and was addressed by the chief Jew hater, Julius Streicher, to-night.

The radical anti-Semite began his speech with a violent attack on the Jews, declaring their father was the Devil himself.
He then turned his attention to the foreign press, saying:
"I know no lower profession than the making of business out of lies. What concern is it of yours if we clean up our own house?"

The Jews had been warned by their leaders to keep indoors during the evening. All their usual cafes and restaurants have been closed, although several of them carried notices announcing concealed gardens in the backyard.

Nothing untoward occurred during the early proceedings.
Streicher spoke for two and a half hours. He violently attacked Catholic priests as well as Jews.
Perspiration streamed down his face, and many of the audience, including several Storm Troopers, fainted in the crush.

No serious disorders are reported in the city.—Reuter.

U.S. STILL BUYS LONDON SILVER MARKET NOW MORE QUIET

TREASURY PROGRAMME CALLED "FARCE"

Washington, Aug. 15.

Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the United States Treasury, and the man behind the Silver Purchase Programme, to-day announced that the Treasury was again buying silver in the London market, which was more quiet than yesterday when heavy United States intervention was necessary.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Commodity Exchange has amended its silver trading rules by increasing the price fluctuation limitation from three cents to five cents, as from September 3.

The Senate has added an amendment to the Tax Bill, providing for the repeal of sections of the Silver Purchase Act providing the fifty per cent. tax on silver profits, authorising the nationalisation of silver and requiring licences for silver imports and exports.

Following a conference with Mr.
Morgenthau on the United States silver policy, Senator Elmer Thomas stated:

"Unless the Government buys sufficient silver in a way that will make the silver dollar actually worth a dollar, the programme might as well be abandoned.
Otherwise the Government will be left holding a lot of silver and the only ones who will benefit will be the foreign speculators."

Immediately after Senator
Thomas issued this statement, Mr.
Morgenthau announced that the Government was still buying silver.

POLICY DENOUNCED

Washington, Aug. 15.

Denouncing the Silver Purchase
Programme as a "farce", Senator
Thomas contended that the law, rather than its administration, was at fault.

He announced a drive to amend the Silver Purchase Act with a view to "bringing the silver market to America."

Senator Thomas asserted that the Government was trying to buy silver as cheaply as possible instead

The official rate of the Hongkong dollar was unchanged at 18. 11/4d. this morning, despite the fall in silver prices in London and New York. The market was quite firm, with business done at two shillings.

of pushing the price with the ultimate objective of its monetisa-tion.

"We thought we had a silver policy, but we haven't other than to buy as cheaply as possible. In that case we made a terrible mistake by enacting the programme because we could have bought silver at 25 or 30 cents an ounce."

"Unless the Government plans to make silver into real primary money, the whole programme is a colossal farce, and as soon as the next Administration comes into power the whole thing will be scuttled."

FALSE HOPES

"We have built up false hopes in the minds of the silver states which are doomed to suffer a tremendous loss when the Administration changes," he declared.

Meanwhile the silver market continued on a downward trend despite Mr. Henry Morgenthau's statement that the Treasury was still buying, which is indicative that the Treasury continues to adhere to its policy to buy as cheaply as possible, and avoid bidding up the market, and will accumulate on a scaling-down basis in the face of pressure of liquidation.—Reuter.

Shanghai, Aug. 10.
Presentation of a tri-motored Italian aeroplane by Mussolini to Chiang Kai-shek, China's military chief-tain and virtual dictator, was more than a good-will gesture on the part of Il Duce.

The gift emphasised the supremacy which the Italians have attained in the military aviation market in China. Already they have eliminated the British from the market and they are rapidly displacing the Americans.

When China first began building a modern air force, shortly after the northward sweep of the Nationalist armies in 1927, British interests were first in the field and their product found favour with Chinese military chieftains.

At that time the power of the National Government was far from consolidated, and virtually independent warlords in various provinces had their own military forces.

As they turned their attention to the purchase of fighting aircraft, the business was easily cornered by the old-established British trading firms which held agencies for British-made planes.

But the agency plan, which gave the British their early entree in the field, proved a detriment in the end. Alert American manufacturers started sending their own sales representatives to China, and a number of well-known aces came here to demonstrate planes and sell them. Among them were Major James Doolittle and Captain Frank Hawks.

The Americans were highly successful. Not only did they have good products, but the direct factory-to-buyer selling plan enabled them to quote advantageous prices. The British middlemen, maintaining only slight contact with the aeronautical engineers at home, were soon out of the running.

With the National government consolidating and expanding its influence, it speedily became practically the only buyer of fighting planes, and its cordiality to the American product gave Americans a virtual monopoly of the Chinese military-aircraft market.

The Italians, however, went the Americans one better. Taking the Italian Boxer Indemnity Fund, they devoted it to the purchase of aircraft, giving them a financial advantage against which even the American terms could not compete.

But Italy went even farther. She sent some of her most famous flying officers to China, not only to demonstrate planes, but to teach young Chinese officers how to fly the new ships and manipulate their guns and bombing apparatus. Italy paid particular attention to this phase of her new relations with China, and was able to bring to the work the prestige of newly-acquired eminence in world speed, endurance and altitude competitions.

This activity culminated in the establishment at Nanchang of China's "West Point of the Air," a military aviation school of which the staff of instructors is 100 per cent. Italian.

Nanchang, to which the national capital was temporarily removed during the 1932 Sino-Japanese hostilities at Shanghai and Nanking, is the most heavily

Salvage Plans In Quetta

Simla, Aug. 1.
THE Government of India's plans for salvage operations at Quetta are made clear in a communique, issued to-day, together with a comprehensive report by Col. Russell, Public Health Commissioner.

It has been decided, says the communique, to instruct the authorities in Baluchistan to take immediate steps to implement the following recommendations made by Col. Russell:

Salvage could begin immediately in certain non-residential and less damaged areas.

The clearance should be undertaken of the wider thoroughfares, and the experimental salvage of a few houses carried out to test the possibility of extending the immediately salvageable area.

The evacuation should be carried out of railway staffs and families owing to their congested camp.

The refugee camp on the race-course, which still shelters 5,000 people, should be removed to a better site near the brewery, where there is a better water supply available.

Col. Russell states that 12,000 to 16,000 corpses are buried under the debris at Quetta in addition to thousands of animal carcasses.

It is undesirable, for health reasons, however, to undertake exhumation on any extensive scale before next March.

The question of the future reconstruction of Quetta, states the communique, cannot be decided until full reports from all the experts, including the military authorities and the geologist, are available.

Parliament Without An Opposition

Halifax (Nova Scotia).

Aug. 1.
The Liberals have won a hundred per cent. victory in the provincial elections in Prince Edward Island, the smallest Canadian province and the last stronghold of the Conservatives.

The Conservatives [whose national leader is Mr. R. B. Bennett, Dominion Premier] have lost not only their majority but every seat they held.

Mr. Walter Lea, the triumphant Premier-elect, appeared unopposed to-day when he faced the House of Assembly in which there was no Opposition.

It has been suggested that he nominates one of his own supporters as a makeshift Opposition!—Exchange.

fortified defence. There Chinese officers are trained in the use of Italian-made planes and are fast acquiring an Italian "slant" on all tactical and technical problems.

The importance of Nanchang is emphasised by the history of the Central Aviation School which was established under American tutelage. In 1932 an unofficial American aviation mission headed by Col. John F. Jewett came to China and negotiated a three-year contract for instruction of Chinese pilots by American instructors at Hangchow. The school was established and flourished, but when the contract expired this year it was not renewed, and all the American officer-instructors, with one exception, have left the school and returned to America.

Withdrawal of the American group from the Hangchow school leaves the military wing of Chinese aviation under virtually complete Italian influence.

The gift aeroplane, a tri-motored Savoia Marchetti 72, was flown here by Col. Silvio Scaroni, one of Italy's best-known war pilots, and Captain Angelo Tondi, another ace. Col. Scaroni was formerly air attaché at the Italian embassy in Washington, and his errand here indicated the importance which Il Duce places in Chinese relations. Presentation of the plane to General Chiang Kai-shek was expected to consolidate Italy's pre-dominant influence in Chinese military aeronautics. This, added to the fact that Italy was the first of the treaty powers to elevate her legation in China to the rank of an embassy, was expected to give the Italians a "flying start" on all other nations in cultivating more friendly relations with the Chinese government.—United Press.

HOW SERBIA REPAID A GREAT WAR ALLY

Vienna, Aug. 8.

WHITE RUSSIAN exiles everywhere are watching with interest and anxiety the efforts of other members of the Little Entente to get Yugo Slavia to recognise the Soviets.

This anxiety is counter-balanced, however, by the knowledge that Prince Paul, Regent of Yugo Slavia, has been recently conducting an anti-Soviet policy.

White Russian interest in this question is understandable when it is realised that Belgrade is one of the last havens for exiled Russians. There are many other countries where Russian emigrants are living well, and others where they are living badly, but Belgrade is the only city which has become a real new home for Russian outcasts.

Only in Belgrade is the old flag of the "Tsar of all Russians" still waving over the building of Imperial Russian legation.

Matuska Moskva

There are big Russian restaurants in Belgrade which were not established to present a sham shadow of old Russia to tourists. In these restaurants meals are served not by Russian "princesses," but by true Russian waiters who learned their profession in different restaurants of old "Matuska Moskva"—Mother Moscow—before the Great War. In these restaurants hundreds of Russian emigrants daily eat real Russian cookery, forgetting for a few minutes that they are not in their fatherland.

Near the King's palace stands the Russian legation. The telegrams which were exchanged between this edifice and St. Petersburg 21 years ago were decisive for the fate of the whole world. Now this building gives accommodation to the Russian Red Cross Society and to several other Russian institutions. Only the old Imperial flag still floats over it.

There are many thousands of Russians in Belgrade. There are Russian beggars and Russian millionaires. There are Russians who hold high official situations. There are streets in Belgrade where one can hear the people speaking more Russian than Sorbian, where one can see Russian shops with Russian signboards at every step.

It was the late King Alexander who did this act of kindness for the Russian emigrants. As a young boy Alexander went to

Powerful Friend

When he was raised to the throne by his father, King Peter, on June 12, 1914, he knew that small Serbia had in great Russia a powerful friend.

A few days after he had ascended the throne the world war broke out. Russia fought for King Alexander's small country.

Serbia became a great power after the war and the Tsar's Russia disappeared. The Tsar's beaten army had to leave Russia.

Now, at this moment, King Alexander saw a chance to show his gratitude to Tsarist Russia. He opened the portals of his country to the Russian refugees. Thousands of soldiers, officers and civilians jumped at his offer.

New Fatherland

They found a new fatherland in Alexander's country. Many officers and soldiers were taken over in the Yugo Slavic army. Most of the civilians got jobs—many of them high official situations.

Years have passed. Soviet Russia did its utmost to be recognised by the Balkan countries. Soviet Ambassadors went to Belgrade and Sofia. Belgrade, however, remained hostile.

On October 9, 1934, Alexander was assassinated. With him the Russian emigrants lost their most powerful protector. They are convinced that Regent Prince Paul will continue Alexander's negative policy against the Soviets. But they also realise that Soviet Russia has friends in Yugo Slavia, especially the Oppositional deputy, Doctor Dragoljub Jovanovich, who spares no pains to attain the recognition of Soviet Russia by Yugo Slavia.—United Press.

Mae West Has £800 In Jewellery

Hollywood, Aug. 1.
Great fortunes of Hollywood have dwindled. Nearly all the stars who have just made out their income tax assessments for the past year have suffered.

John Barrymore's assessed valuation is £11,315—of which £11,270 represents his yacht Infanta. A year ago his gross assessment was £19,288.

Mae West is down for £800 worth of jewellery. Charlie Chaplin's assessment—£538,498—compares with £610,244 last year.

Gloria's £1,950

Mary Pickford is listed at £293,148, compared with £390,154 last year, and the rolls show only £7,908 for Douglas Fairbanks sen., compared with £213,106.

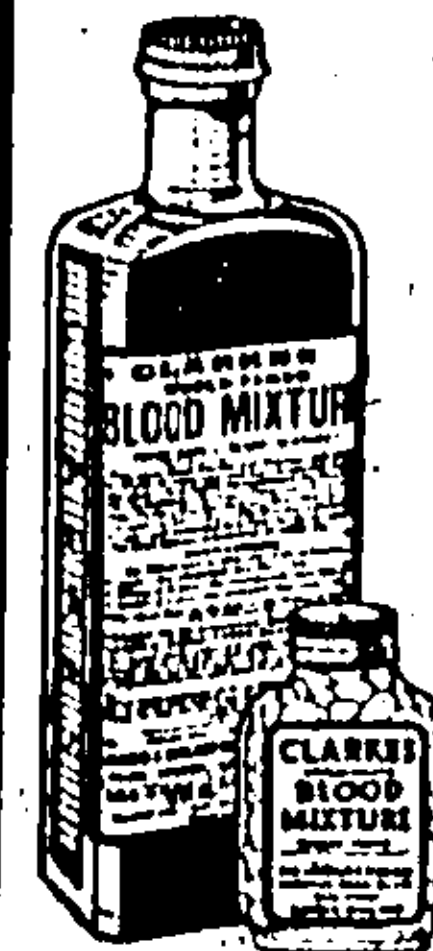

"Will" Rogers is assessed at £40,598, compared with £64,584 last year. Gloria Swanson: Dropped from £6,926 last year to £1,950.

Some of these stars hold property outside Los Angeles which is not accounted for in these income tax returns.

CHAPLIN FILM.

A FINE WORK

The handling of no fewer than 4,000 cases, involving the welfare of 7,600 young people, is the record now attained by the Society for the Protection of Children. It is a record of which the voluntary workers associated with the Society may well be proud, for it implies the bringing of better health and more happiness to thousands of poor juveniles whose parents are utterly unable, by reason of poverty, to provide the necessities of life, let alone medical treatment, for their offspring. Some idea of the extent of this poverty may be gained from the fact that in cases dealt with last month, there were 19 in which no income at all was being received, whilst the average monthly income per head in the other cases was well below the two-dollar mark! It is almost impossible for the ordinary individual of even modest means to envisage what this means. These unfortunate people who are helped by the Society cannot, in the majority of cases, afford to rent even a cubicle; they have to be content with bed-spaces which in many instances have to do duty for a whole family. When the Society was first launched, the utmost difficulty was experienced in inducing poor people to accept medical and other help, but of late there has been a growing disposition on the part of those needing assistance and advice to visit the Society's centres, no fewer than 2,558 such visits being paid during last month. This of itself is proof of the appreciation now shown of the humanitarian work of the Society. Not only does this work include the provision of medical aid, milk, etc., but it also involves the maintenance of deserving cases in various institutions and the granting of supplies to others. In short, the Society is doing its utmost, within the resources available, to brighten the lives and improve the prospects of a section of the community which finds it extremely difficult to keep above the mere subsistence level. It is, moreover, interesting itself in the question of the possible provision of children's hospitals, the need of which has long been felt. Admittedly, only the fringe of a big social problem is at present being touched, but,

NOTES OF THE DAY

FINANCIAL IRONY

Comment on the silver flutters of yesterday and the day before is a little belated at this stage, and cannot possibly serve any useful purpose. Nevertheless, there is something to be said, about scare-mongering in the market. Not for a moment do we suggest that the New York Journal of Commerce was speaking without substantial authority when it asserted that the Treasury of the United States would abandon its silver purchasing policy in the foreign field. Reports of that sort frequently are whispered from the private offices of influential people, though they may have been founded on no better evidence than something heard through the crack in the door. Unfortunately a newspaper is not in a position to obtain either confirmation or denial of such rumours in a moment. The Treasury Department at Washington is most secretive. Moreover, a paper receiving such a startling piece of information as that published by the Journal of Commerce must hasten to publish it, in the public interest, unless it is contradicted. It has been hinted that perhaps the Treasury Department itself was responsible for the rumour that it was about to change its policy, its endeavour being to shake out the "bull" operators and stabilise the market. Whatever the case may be, the Washington reports were almost universally accepted at their face value and the markets responded with a crash. There were ruined men in other trading centres than Hongkong. All of which goes to prove—of anything—that even the best authority is apt to go astray and that it is best to invest only in official information. And yet, by following the Journal of Commerce's apparently incorrect report, one could have made a small fortune on Wednesday afternoon. That is true irony.

INSTRUMENTS OF EDUCATION

The age is fruitful in new mediums of education. Do the authorities take full advantage of them? To this question Sir John Reith, director general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, and Sir James Marchant, chairman of visual education, reply with a resounding "no." According to Sir John Reith, not more than 20 per cent of the educational authorities in Britain use the instructional services provided by the B.B.C.; yet, he maintains, the sum of £400,000, spread over five years, would equip every school in the country with a receiving set. The same is true of cinema projectors, declares Sir James Marchant. Many excellent educational films have been manufactured, especially in the sphere of natural history; and the educational and cultural value of the B. B. C.'s radiocasts to schools, contributed by eminent authors, scholars, statesmen and journalists, is well known; so that it is regrettable if full use is not made of them.

ANOTHER VIEW

But there is something to be said for the conservatism of teachers. At the beginning of the era of film and radio so many extravagant claims were made on their behalf, sometimes to the effect that the whole teaching staff of the nation would be rendered obsolete, that the natural reaction may well have been to doubt whether these two new mediums were really of much educational value at all. Anything that tends to show that this is not so is therefore of considerable potential influence in moulding the educational development of the country. Thus, interest is deservedly being aroused by an experiment currently carried on in a school in Hemel Hempstead, where tests are being made to find out whether the educational value of the cinema is increased if students are given an insight into the critical and technical fundamentals of film art. Such experiments as these, which, up and down Europe and America, are probably numerous in connection with both cinema and radio, deserve wide publicity; for it is from them that the data are derived which show how the best results may be obtained from these new mediums of education, with the consequent breaking down of such prejudice as still exists.

with adequate financial support, the Society could greatly extend its activities. At the moment, the call for funds exceeds the income, there already being a heavy deficit on the present year's working. In view, however, of the magnificent work which is being done, the Society confidently looks to the public for further monetary support in order that it may continue its war on poverty and disease amongst the poor children of the Colony.

FISHES ARE GREAT TRAVELLERS

By W. P. PYCRAFT

THE realisation that some fishes, at any rate, migrate as birds do, is shown when we speak of the herring season or the mackerel season in England; but the nature and the extent of these migrations is by no means generally recognised.

Some fishes, like certain birds, are resident in Britain; but there are some which must perforce migrate either for the sake of food or to find suitable places for spawning. This last reason occasions some strange journeys.

The salmon, for instance, leaves the sea for fresh water. And before it can reach a suitable site for mating and the deposition of its eggs, it is often called on to perform gymnastic feats of no mean order. For it must ascend torrential rapids, and leap after leap has to be made before the desired haven is attained.

This sudden change from salt to fresh water is remarkable. And no less so is the fact that the whole sojourn in the river is passed fasting!

Stranger still is the fact that though not hungry it will fall to the lure of the fisherman's "fly."

No one has yet been able to explain this eccentric behaviour.

When the salmon has mated, and the eggs are laid, the return journey to the sea is made.

Visitors to the Cornish coast during the summer will see something of the pilchard-fishing. For this fish then haunts our southern coast for food, having already spawned at sea.

The young, emerging from the egg in mid-water, for the most part migrate to the west coast of France, where they are caught in large numbers to provide us with "sardines." For the sardine, it is perhaps not generally known, is not a distinct species but a pilchard in the immature stage.

Migrations of the herring, on which vast numbers of men depend for a living, and which furnish a small part of our food-supply, are more complicated than at one time was supposed. Some, like the Loch Fyne herring, do not migrate; others, which do, are now found to be of two races, a summer and a winter-spawning race.

Each comes shorewards to lay its eggs in the estuaries. It is the summer-herring which affords the most important fisheries along the coasts of Scotland and England.

Why holiday-makers see so little of the huge shoals of herring and mackerel on their migrations is easily accounted for, since these fish rest in the deep water by day and come to the surface to feed at night on the minute crustacea which then come up in incredible swarms.

But the case is different with the "scud," or horse-mackerel, which sometimes appear off our coasts in vast numbers.

One case is on record where, from any given spot on the route, they could be seen passing in such mighty hosts that, from above, they looked like one black mass. They were preying on herring-fry.

That giant of the mackerel tribe, the tunny, appears in the Mediterranean in early summer in huge numbers. But it makes no spectacular display on arrival, their presence being demonstrated by fishermen conversant with their habits.

With great nets, sometimes several miles in length, they intercept the migrants. As the nets are hauled in the fish are speared or clubbed and run ashore to be "canned."

Of late years they have afforded exhilarating sport to anglers in the North Sea, off Yorkshire. Special tackle, however, and enormous hooks have to be used when tunny are taken with a rod, and they give their captor an exciting and strenuous time.

But the most wonderful of all fish migrations is that of the fresh-water eel, which reverses the habit of the salmon and goes to the sea to spawn. About no fish has there been so much mystery as that which surrounds the spawning of the eel.

But some thirty years ago this mystery was cleared up. As the time for spawning approaches the eels congregate in shoals. Such as live in isolated ponds make their way overland, through the wet grass, at night, to the nearest river.

In Norfolk they have been seen swimming among the rushes that fringe the banks in such enormous numbers that the larger fish were thrusting the smaller half out of the water.

It is a mad rush, this journey to the sea, and it is the longest journey any fish is known to make on a similar errand.

The eels head for the Western Atlantic, south-east of Bermuda, some 3,000 miles distant, and here, at a depth of about 100 fathoms, they lay their eggs—and die!

Even more strange seems the history of the larval eels emerging from these eggs, for they have to find their way back to the rivers which their parents left.

The journey takes about three years, and they undergo a great transformation in its course. Minute, transparent, shaped like a willow leaf, they feed on microscopic organisms and having attained to a length of about three inches, they begin to grow smaller!

This is because the mouth has to be "closed for alterations" and so, for a time, they must fast, life being sustained by absorbing some of the substance of the body.

But just before they enter our rivers they have gained their new-modelled jaws, and they ascend the rivers in vast swarms.

There is something uncanny about this 3,000-miles journey of the infant prodigies. Though they are borne along by the kindly Gulf Stream, which sets out from the Gulf of Mexico across the Atlantic, there must be some subtle "urge" within them, developing what we may call a "thirst for fresh water." This causes them to follow up its first traces until the river is found.

But the journey is not yet ended. They disperse as they go along, and thousands, with wonderful water-diving power, make their way out of the water, at night, to crawl through the grass and find the ponds and ditches left by their parents when they set out to fulfil the creative urge. There is no story to match this in all the history of fishes.

The Very Idea!

APROPOS WOMEN

Edward Kelly Thinks They Were Born For Love

THINGS, like women, change.

In the days of chivalry, round tables, knights, daze, beautiful women, the flower of love burned brightly on the field of honour.

Feelings were kind and tender. The lowest of any tender was never accepted.

To-day what do we find? Not even a sterling compensation fund.

Once upon a time it used to be chivalry to step off a roadway to let a woman pass.

Now, especially if she's at the wheel of a motor-car, it's not chivalry, but darn common sense.

Gimme the good old days. Lancelot climbs up the grapevine, tearing a hole in his armour as he catches a nail.

But does he swear?

No! He whistles instead, and at the first pulsating trill, Cynthia shyly creeps out onto the balcony—sorry—balcony.

"Oh, strong and savage man," she cried in an ecstasy of fear, "desiring you with the fierceness of love, wanting you with throbbing tenderness; I yearn for you with bleeding heart. Beloved, my love transcends the immortals. My hero! my knight! my love! Fly to my arms!"

Lancelot flies. Time flies. The scene changes. In this kind of weather the unseen also changes. Everybody changes.

It is now 1935. Lancelot has a frail.

"Kid," he says, "you and the Hongkong heat have got me hot and bothered. I gotta have you, baby. What's the use of stallin' like this? Let's go visit th' parson and get hitched. An' take that grin off your face or I'll wipe it off."

Cyn. nestles closer to him.

"Watta man", she murmurs, "whatta man! Why don't you come up 'n' see muh sometime."

In the olden days married women wore nothing but plain gold wedding rings. After they abandoned the loose leaf system they started wearing clothes as well.

Nowadays, brides are not content unless they can get platinum hoops. We once knew a chap who gave his girl a brass wedding ring. She thought it was gold.

Imagine her embarrassment.

But girls in Hongkong are like that. They're as hard as iron. The irony of it.

There's two classes of women in Hongkong. Those who need petting, and those who need chloroforming. Those who need petting apply to us. Those who need chloroforming apply to the others.

If there's one thing we don't like it's a woman who nags.

Two things we don't like are two women who nag.

The last key to our ignition was like that. In America they'd call her a speakasey.

Speaking of speakaseys: We can't sign chits at the Hotels, so we're off out to Shing Mun to see Mr. Gifford-Hull. If he hasn't a bottle of whisky handy, we'll drink his reservoir dry.

Au reservoir!

TEN WICKET WIN FROM DERBY

INCREASES LEAD CONSIDERABLY

FIVE MATCHES TO BE PLAYED

London, Aug. 15. Yorkshire is well on her way to regaining the County Cricket championship which she lost last season to Lancashire when she suffered seriously from the absence of many of her leading players, whose services were required for England against the Australians.

The demands made upon the Northern county this season have been equally heavy but Yorkshire has managed to win her matches by convincing margins nevertheless. In many instances only two days have been taken to subdue the opposition.

In the last match in which the County has been engaged Yorkshire continued in winning vein and severely trounced Derbyshire, her nearest rivals, by no less a margin than ten wickets at Scarborough.

There was no outstanding performance by any one particular player but each did his share and when Yorkshire went to the wickets a total of 304 was reached.

E. R. T. HOLMES SELECTED

FOR FINAL TEST AT OVAL

London, Aug. 15. It is announced that the Surrey captain, E. R. T. Holmes, has been invited to replace C. F. Walters in England's Test team which is to meet the South African cricketers in the fifth and final match at the Oval tomorrow. —Reuter

Yorkshire then went to the wickets to score five runs without loss. Yorkshire has five more matches to play before the close of the season, but she has now established such a commanding lead that there seems little doubt of her ultimate success.

On Saturday she meets Middlesex at Leeds and her remaining matches are against Worcestershire at Worcester, Surrey at the Oval, Sussex at Hove and Hampshire at Portsmouth. —Reuter

The Detroit Tigers, leaders of the American League, outplayed the Senators and scored six runs to their opponents' three, while the New York Yankees won by 3-1 against the Cleveland Indians.

There were some easy victories in the National League in which the Braves beat the Reds by 8-0, the Phillies won from the Pirates by 9-1 and the Cubs trounced the Dodgers by 11-3.

FOOTBALL ENGLAND TO MEET SCOTLAND

(By Frank M. Carruthers)

The new football season is to have a fine start with an honest-to-goodness international match between England and Scotland.

Some time ago I mentioned that the match was contemplated, and it has now been arranged to take place in Glasgow on Wednesday, August 21.

The Scottish authorities were disappointed that at the end of last season they were unable to make an adequate contribution to the Jubilee Trust Fund owing to their tour in America. The best they could do was to arrange for an Anglo-Scottish team to play an English side at Highbury.

The match which has now been fixed, however, will be between the best teams of the two countries, and it is sure to make a big appeal.

BROWN AND DUNCAN WIN

IN SINGLES LAWN BOWLS TOURNEY

PROGRESS IN THE CHAMPIONSHIPS

On the Civil Service C.C. green, J. C. Brown, of the Kowloon B.G.C. defeated W.K. Way, of the Craigengower C.C. by 21 shots to 16. When Brown scored eight shots on the first three heads, it looked as if it might be a run-away affair, but Way fought back strongly to claim the next three heads although he totalled only four.

Blanking out his opponent for five heads running, Brown increased his lead to 17-5 on the thirteenth head. On the sixteenth head, the score was 18-8 in favour of Brown, but on the nineteenth, it was only 18-14.

The game ended on the 22nd head with the score at 21-16 for Brown.

On the Club de Recreo green, R. Duncan, of the Kowloon Bowling Club, defeated A. Macfarlane, of the Hongkong Football Club, by 21 shots to 14. Both players gave a good display but Macfarlane was inclined to be inconsistent, falling off towards the end just when he was about to turn the tables on his opponent who was then leading by one shot.

With the exception of the 16th and 17th heads, when he allowed Macfarlane to get within striking distance, Duncan bowled exceedingly well and thoroughly deserved to win. The match ended on the 20th head.

A NARROW WIN FOR A. DAILEY

DUNLOP-SOUTHERN TOURNAMENT

WINS GOLF TITLE BY ONE STROKE

(By F. J. C. PIGNON)

Allan Dailey, a young St. Andrews golfer, professional to the Wanstead Club, Essex, gained a magnificent victory in the Dunlop-Southern £150 professional tournament at Hendon.

He won the 36-holes stroke competition with a total of 139, a round of 69 giving him his success by a single stroke from Charles Whitcombe (Crews Hill), the Ryder Cup captain, and Percy Alliss (Beaconsfield).

Dailey was hailed as a coming champion about two years ago, but since that time he has suffered from ill-health and lack of practice. Now he is striking the ball beautifully. He declared, "I am awfully glad to be back for the first time for months and have regained confidence."

Dailey played so well that he did not have to play a greater margin. His iron shots and putts were accurate, but at two short holes he took four through misjudged irons. Immediately in front of him Percy Alliss had finished with a total of 140. He had struggled to do a round of 72, but had been able to get a three at the home hole he would have won. He took three putts and a five instead.

S. F. Brews, of South Africa, and Abe Mitchell, playing together, had each returned fine scores of 69, but they were out of it because of their first-round scores.

Only Charles Whitcombe had much chance of catching Dailey. Whitcombe went straight from an operation by an osteopath upon his foot for a misplaced bone. "I do not think I can play well today; I feel afraid that the bone may slip again," he said and he played that kind of golf.

In the end he was beaten by inches. He needed to accomplish the last three holes in ten strokes to win. At the 16th his putt for three lipped the hole and stopped an inch or two away. At the 17th his putt for three stopped an inch short.

A long drive to the 18th was bunkered, but Whitcombe was no more than eight yards from the hole in two. He putted boldly, but the ball did not drop. He had put up a brave fight against a handicap of which few spectators knew.

Twelve Day Bridge Test Match Next

INTERNATIONAL MATCH

Four men—two from England versus two from America—are going to play contract bridge for six hours a day for six days a week for a fortnight.

Play starts on Monday, August 19.

They will play 150 rubbers. They will play for a stake of £500—which means for each member of the winning team between £17 and £18 a day.

This will be the first international match of rubber—not duplicate—bridge ever played. Unless one side wins by at least 5,000 points the match will be declared "No contest."

"PROFILE" PLAY

Ingram and Hughes writes The Daily Express bridge Correspondent, played second pair for England in the last Schwab trophy, when the team only just lost to Ely Culbertson. They are a combination of forceful calling by Ingram, precise inference from Hughes, and—on occasion—inspired bluff by both.

Ingram is tall, broad, tanned—as if his sport were tennis, not bridge. He plays with an affection of carelessness. He plays bridge as John Barrymore plays on the screen—largely in profile.

Hughes is slim, pink-checked, spectacled. His voice is a whisper lest he betray his hand either to opponents (bad business) or partner (sharp practice). The defensiveness of his gestures contrasts with Ingram's spaciousness.

Gottlieb is dark, suave, astute. Sir Guy Domville, the English international, who has played against him, regards him as the finest American player he has met.

THE "FOUR ACES"

He is the captain and Shenken is a member of the team calling themselves the "Four Aces" which have been U.S. champions for two years and have won eleven out of the last thirteen competitions for which they have entered.

The U.S. pair will play a system of their own—the "Four Aces" system. It has a forcing bid of two of a suit, and is an amplification with many refinements of the "strong two" most people play in England.

The English pair are to play the "one club." This means that a call of "one club" may be called on any club holding from five honours to a void suit.

BRADBURY WINS

BEATS SILVA IN OPEN BOWLS TOURNEY

SECOND VICTORY IN 3 YEARS

(By "Sagax")

For the second time in three years B. W. Bradbury, the Craigengower C.C. player, has beaten C. G. Silva, of the Club de Recreo, to qualify for the last eight of the Open Singles Lawn Bowls Championship. Yesterday he won against the Portuguese representative by a margin of 21 shots to nine, securing a slightly easier victory than he did in 1933 when he entered the quarter-finals by a score of 23 shots to 15.

With his victory of two years ago still fresh in his mind, Bradbury entered upon yesterday's match full of confidence of being able to repeat the success but although he has gone far in the tournaments in previous years it was not generally anticipated that he would eliminate Silva, let alone by such a convincing margin as twelve shots. The match was actually ended on the fifteenth head, there being three fours scored during the course of the game.

Bradbury maintained a much better standard of play than did his opponent and was a deserving winner. He was drawing more accurately and was able to find the green quicker than Silva, who was never able to gauge the green with any degree of certainty. He was invariably narrow and also had a tendency to be short.

On the first three heads of the match only singles were scored, Bradbury claiming two and Silva one, but on the fourth head Bradbury out-drew his opponent and lay three good shots, Silva being heavy in an attempt to break up the head. He had not met with early success with heavy shots when, on the first head, he had dislodged two counters when Bradbury had been lying three and this apparently gave him encouragement to drive.

BRADBURY'S EARLY LEAD

Silva is well-known for his driving but yesterday he was not as accurate as he has been in rink matches and paid the penalty whenever he missed his objective.

Bradbury went into a 7-1 lead on the sixth head but Silva scored a two and then a four to make the scores 7-7. In securing the possible count he had to trail the jack, and at the same time bump Bradbury's counter into the ditch. Bradbury might easily have saved a couple but he was hopelessly short with his last wood.

However, the Craigengower C.C. player dominated the game from the ninth head when he registered a two. When he drew four shots on the twelfth head Bradbury was playing by far the better bowler. Silva was short with three of his woods and through with the fourth.

DOUBLES MATCH IN DAVIS CUP

SPORTSMANSHIP OF VON CRAMM

(By STANLEY N. DOUST)

London, July 24. U.S.A. lead Germany by two rubbers to one in the inter-zone final of the Davis Cup as the result of winning one of the most exciting and fluctuating doubles ever played in the competition, when W. Allison and J. Van Ryn beat C. van Cramm and K. Lund by 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, 8-6.

Nothing but the tigerish fighting spirit of the Americans, Allison's inspired play when the Germans had two match points in the fourth set, and Van Ryn's quiet and effective play in the fifth set, when the Germans had three more match points, saved the situation.

Yet von Cramm was the hero of the match. Lund did his job of serving and smashing magnificently, but his return of the service and close volleying were the cause of the Germans losing.

When they had picked up from 1-4 down in the final set and with a burst of brilliance that bewildered the Americans went to 5-1 and at 6-5 were 15-40 on Van Ryn's service. Lund, instead of going for an attacking return, lobbed weakly and the ball was crashed back to von Cramm's feet.

Von Cramm was wonderful. He made one bad stroke in the first three sets and had been strongly supported. Germany would have won.

WONDERFUL CHANGE

But that fifth set! After their escape in the fourth set the Americans braced themselves and brilliantly outplayed the Germans to lead by 4-1.

Lund here rallied, and von Cramm, playing like the genius he is, and using his head magnificently, won the next four games in a row. Five-four to Germany.

This wonderful change came like a flash.

The Germans had the match in their grasp, but then came Lund's weak return of the service. Von Cramm, taking courage in both hands, went all out, but failed.

Von Cramm, in the tense atmosphere, never forgot his sporting instinct. He needed one point for game to lead at 7-6. A sharp rally, and then Allison drove a ball that was called "out" by the linesman, but von Cramm signalled that the ball had touched the top of his racket. The Germans lost that game and the next for a match that was played in the greatest possible sporting spirit.

The score was then 14-9 and a single and a two made it 17-9.

On the last head Bradbury again drew four shots around the jack with Silva being heavy with two woods and short with a third. Instead of drawing to save with his last wood Silva drove but struck his own short wood and conceded a four to give Bradbury the match.

TWO DOMINIONS AT CRICKET

South Africans And The Australians

(By R. ABBI)

CHAPTER XI SOUTH AFRICA AND AUSTRALIA

It is with some diffidence that this chapter is set down, as it may be thought rather outside the interest of the majority of readers. But though these articles have never claimed to be anything but a skeleton account of South African cricket it seems a pity to leave certain of the bones missing, and so far as is possible the account of the cricket relationship between our two Dominions will be kept to a bare outline. As regards the earlier cricket, the lack of records demands a very sketchy treatment; while the somewhat more detailed review of the South African tour in Australia and New Zealand in 1931-2, perhaps, exposable.

As was written in an earlier chapter, the South African eleven of 1901 was a much better one than it was popularly held to be, and it was more or less available when Joe Darling's magnificent side, which had won the rubber in England in the Summer of 1902, dropped in to South Africa on their way back. Of the three Test Matches played, Australia won the last two easily enough, but in the first they got a bit of a shock when Murray Hissett's men, though they were a perfectly even draw. But the interesting point was that the South Africans, having gained further experience of great cricketers which led them along the path to the brilliant side of 1907, of which I have spoken at length.

FIRST VISIT TO AUSTRALIA

In the autumn of 1910 South Africa got together a side which, I believe, (for my records are lacking here) was very much the same one that beat the M.C.C. in 1909-10. But the South Africans were just past the crest and the tour ended in failure. Mr. Altham has put it succinctly that "in an orgy of run-getting the South Africans failed occasionally, the Australians never." The result was that Australia won four out of the five Tests. As a matter of fact the key of the trouble was that the goosely—as produced by the famous quartette—simply did not cut off on the perfect Australian wicket. Though the same thing happened later in the case of Freeman, who has never been a great success in Australia, though admittedly the parallel is not perfect.

Indeed, Vogler, from his brilliance against England a year before, quite lost his form and Faulkner declined into a run-making machine, if one may use the expression. Trumper was at his best and South Africa was beat! But it is doubtful if anyone then realised it was the beginning of the twenty year decline of South African Cricket.

THE TRIANGULAR TEST

It is unnecessary to write at any length of the unfortunate Summer days of 1912. Suffice it to say that South Africa were twice badly beaten by Australia, (after losing three times to England), but had the satisfaction of having the better of the draw in the third game. The only point that deserves notice is that they helped, in the first Test Match against Australia, to make Test Match history, as their batsmen allowed Matthews to do the hat-trick in each innings—a feat which will, no doubt, stand as a record for many a long year. Parenthetically, it is very interesting to note that in each innings Matthews took three wickets and no more!

THE LATEST VENTURE

Once more South Africa ventured forth against Australia in the winter of 1931-32. After their success in the previous season against England, much was hoped from the tour. But the result was a sad set-back, which, as we now know, was destined to be temporary only. The team was made up of sixteen players, besides the Manager, and was captained by H. B. Cameron who had been in charge of the last two Test Matches against England in the 1931-32 contest. The experience gained would, one would have thought, make it certain that Cameron would be skipper of this year's side. But as is now known, Wade has been preferred. I do not know the exact reason. Possibly the severe reverses in Australia may have cast some doubt as to his ability, or possibly there was some trouble in South Africa later. There had been something wrong for a year or two, as witness the refusal of Deane to play in the first Test Match. But to resume. Of the team that went to Australia, seven players are in Wade's team—Cameron, Balaskas, Bell, Dalton, Bruce Mitchell, Viljoen and Vincent.

A MEDIOCRE RECORD

There were twenty-one matches included in their programme, of which five were played out of Australia proper, two in Tasmania, and three in New Zealand. Of these nine were won, six drawn and six lost. They did fairly well in their "states" games as the only one they lost was against Victoria. Their success in the five matches out of Australia was great for they beat Tasmania once, Auckland once and all New Zealand twice, drawing one game against Tasmania.

But the fact was that after the success against England in their previous season, the South African cricketers were very hopeful of beating, or at least holding their own, with the full strength of Australia. It was, therefore, a great blow to find themselves just crumpled up and thrown away. It seems that they developed a definite complex about Bradman and Grimmett. The appearance of the former was the signal for the bowlers to lose their length, while when Grimmett went on the batsmen became hypnotised and in many cases had a blind goal at him. The result was that while they had in 1910-11 failed chiefly because their bowling did not come off on Australian wickets, in 1931-32 they did far worse from sheer bad cricket. The result was that they lost all the five Test Matches, three by an innings, one by ten wickets, and one by 160 runs. To revert to a comparison which I have used before, I will quote the leading bowling figures. It is a remarkable how few Australian wickets fell:

AUSTRALIA

	O.	M.	R.	W.	Av.
Tomlinson	222	112	300	31	9.67
Grimmett	305	108	567	33	16.87
T. W. Wall	129	38	264	13	20.44

SOUTH AFRICA
ER	A. J. Bell	207	25	627	23	27.2
AN	N. A. Quinn	208	44	612	13	39.2
10	C. L. Vincent	177	20	543	10	64.3

The figures speak for themselves. The batting averages are fairly distinctive too, even when one eliminates Bradman's figures.

In the first game the South Africans had rather a disheartening experience as, after Australia had rattled up 450 (Bradman 266) on a thoroughly good wicket, rain fell after they had got 120 for three. Next day they were all out for 170 and could do no better than 117 in their second innings. Herbert Taylor got over 40 in each knock.

In the second game they did no better, though the weather was not against them, and they won the toss. They scored 153 and 101. In between the two innings Australia made 469. Bradman only got 112 this time.

A BETTER FIGHT

The South Africans in the first innings of the third Test got rid of Woodfull, Ponsford and Bradman for seven, seven and two respectively; and put the whole side out for 198. They then proceeded to score 358, thanks in part to a nice century by K. G. Viljoen. Things looked good, until the irrepressible Bradman made 167 and Woodfull 161 and the Australians were all out for 551! The match was lost by 169 runs.

But this grows tedious. In the fourth game they made 308 and 274, but Bradman was not out 299 and a ten wicket victory was the result. In the last match Australia only made 153 and still won by an innings and seventy-two! Bradman in the century, was hurt early on and took no part in the match.

IN NEW ZEALAND

To conclude on a slightly brighter note, South Africa won the first Test

In the second Test, South Africa won by eight wickets, after a century by Balaskas. It is, by the way, interesting to note that he did quite well with the bat on this tour, while C. L. SERIAL STORY—

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER I

Janet Hill's gray eyes raised—and lowered—hastily. Intently she studied the typewritten sheet that lay before her and intently—a little more severely than necessary—her fingers tapped out the words on the keys. "It is to be remembered that the purchasing public—"

A sudden, impatient gesture and the typing ceased. Janet suppressed exclamation. She had copied the words twice and the page was ruined. Oh, well—what was the use of pretending? No matter how busily at work she might seem there was no stopping the dark figure heading toward the entrance of the office.

The dark figure was that of a young man. He had gained the threshold now and paused.

"Mr. Hamilton around?" Janet looked up. She smiled and the smile was that of a serene, thoroughly businesslike secretary as she answered. "He just stepped out, Mr. Cressy. I think he's in Mr. Chambers' office. If you want to see him—"

"Why, of course." The young man in the doorway raised a hand in protest. "No, no—it isn't important. As a matter of fact it was you I wanted to talk to, not Hamilton. That is, if you can spare a moment or two."

"The young man slumped against the opposite desk, half-seated himself. He must have been in the later 20s—an average looking young man with sandy hair and agreeable features, a trifle heavy in build, a trifle too well-groomed. He said with a grin, "Seem to be awfully busy in here this morning."

"Not especially. I mean there's always plenty to do."

"But don't you ever think of anything except work?"

Janet moved uncomfortably. It was going to be the same thing all over again. For three successive Saturdays and on several evenings in between she had told Howard Cressy she couldn't accept his invitations for luncheon or dinner. No, not for a movie or a concert or a drive, either. She had used all the excuses from previous engagements to a headache. She couldn't leave a new excuse. Well, she would just use one of the old ones. Why couldn't Howard Cressy take a hint?

"Mr. Hamilton seems to be able to keep everyone busy," she countered. "But work Saturday afternoon, do you? You don't have to work to-night? How about taking a little drive out on the Madison road? There's a nice place."

The girl interrupted. "I'm sorry, Mr. Cressy. I won't be able to go. I'm having a guest this evening and I'll have to go home and cook dinner." "So you can cook! Beauty and brains and the domestic arts! But aren't you going to invite me to one of these dinner parties? Don't I ever get a break, Janet?"

She was saved from making an answer. A rustle of paper, the sound of footsteps and Bruce Hamilton—broad-shouldered, tweed clad, his eyes framed in dark spectacles—appeared in the doorway. Bruce Hamilton looked like a college professor. Only when he dictated letters in a brisk, staccato voice, when he barked commands into the telephone or when he flared into stormy arguments did he suddenly become the shrewd, tireless and dominating advertising manager of Every Home Magazine. Hamilton's dark hair was mixed with gray but the eyes beneath that pepper and salt tangle were young and challenging. Hamilton walked with a light step. Evidently the conference had come off as he wanted it.

The younger man had risen to his feet. He said quickly, "Oh, Mr. Hamilton, I've just had an answer from Fairbanks. He likes the idea of the contest. Think it will be a big circulation builder and wants to go in for it strong. Here's his letter if you'd like to read it."

"Thanks," Hamilton took the letter. He laid half a dozen sheets of yellow paper on Janet's desk and said, "Miss Hill, I've made some revisions in that copy. Sorry to ask you to work overtime but it has to get off in the first mail. Make two carbons, please. And will you start it at once and let the letters and that Bailey memorandum wait?"

"Yes, Mr. Hamilton." "Now, then, Cressy—" The advertising manager sank back in his desk chair and looked up at the young promotion director. With Hamilton's arrival Cressy had suddenly become all business. The two men talked of figures and mailing schedules, the new contest and the circular going out next month. Their voices rose and fell. Cressy's enthusiastic Hamilton agreeing or arguing more calmly.

Janet was not listening. She had glanced at her wristwatch as her employer entered. Twenty minutes of 12. The copying in itself wouldn't take long but with the letters, the speech to be given before the Luncheon Club, the memorandum—oh, it would be two o'clock before she could get away. She had hoped that on this Saturday she would be able to leave the office at 12:30, the hour when, theoretically, she supposed to leave.

Well, she couldn't ask to have some one else do the work. She would have to type as swiftly as she could and finish. Lunch didn't matter. After she'd finished she would have a glass of milk and sandwich at the counter on the corner. The shampoo she'd hoped for would have to be postponed until to-morrow. That way she'd get everything done.

Janet's fingers clicked out the neat sentences. Rapidly but not at the reckless pace that would have meant errors. The dancing keys flew up and down with rhythmic, machine-like precision.

She didn't notice how frequently Howard Cressy's gaze wandered from the advertising manager's desk to the brown head of the advertising manager's secretary. It was forgivable. Almost any young man would have done the same.

Janet Hill wasn't a beauty, not in the breath-taking, sensational sense of the word. Janet's gray eyes were not the sort to do hypnotic tricks when a man looked at her. They were level eyes, fringed with dark lashes and they looked out on the world in a friendly, confident way. They were practical eyes and the broad forehead above them was practical, too. Janet had cheeks and a throat like cream and her lips were the dark, rich hue of ripe cherries. It was unusual to see such creamy skin with gray eyes. But any artist would have told you it was exactly right with the waving, light brown hair that gleamed copper in the sunlight. Right, too, was the well-molded chin, the nose and the generous lips.

And then, just when one had catalogued Janet's features and decided that here was a girl who was attractive and pleasant and sensible, one saw the freckles. Almost a dozen of them scattered across the cheeks. A dozen small, but perfectly visible freckles of the same golden brown as Janet's hair. She chafed the freckles down with a swift, efficient touch of that businesslike young face. They were likely to make you wonder how Janet Hill looked when she smiled. They made you want to wait and see.

She was 23 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and for two years she had taken dictation, typed letters, made appointments, executed errands, done a hundred and one other secretarial duties in the office of Every Home Magazine. All this in necessary to a complete picture of Janet Hill but all this, in after all, quite minor. The one important thing to know about Janet was that she was engaged to Rolf Carlyle.

That, at least, was the way Janet looked at it. They had been engaged for almost a year, yet the mention of Rolf's name was enough to set her heart beating a swift, exciting tattoo. That warming and quickening that made Janet wonder if all the world understood how she felt about Rolf—and blush at the thought.

It was being engaged to Rolf that made Howard Cressy's continued attentions so annoying. It was being engaged to Rolf that made working after hours—especially on Saturday—distasteful. But it was being engaged to Rolf, too, that had made the world a paradise Janet Hill had never imagined it could be, that made the once ordinary city of Lancaster suddenly the earth's garden spot, that made Janet Hill's hitherto commonplace existence a state of ecstasy beyond anything she had ever dreamed.

Oh, yes, it was like that—being engaged to Rolf. Janet was engaged and she was in love.

She and Rolf didn't talk so much about when they were going to be married. They didn't talk about it because it was the one thing that shadowed their dreamy happiness. They wanted to be married and they couldn't because they didn't have the money. That was why Janet sat in Bruce Hamilton's office from 9 o'clock until 5—and often long afterward—five days a week and for half days on Saturdays when she would so much rather have been bustling about a blue and white kitchen of her own. Give up her job to cook and wash dishes and mend and iron clothes? Indeed she would! She'd have been glad to.

would take the declaration to four hearts, while others prefer three, in which case West would go to four hearts.

The Play
It is North's opening and if he opens the jack of spades, the top of his partner's suit, the declarer will go game, losing only two spades and the ace of hearts. As North holds the ace x x of trump, the nine of diamonds is his correct opening, dummy plays the deuce, South the five and declarer would win the trick with the ten of diamonds. The declarer starts his trump suit by leading the king of hearts, which North wins with the ace. North should now lead his partner's suit, the jack of spades, dummy plays the ten and South must overtake with the king of spades. South now leads a small diamond which North wins with the deuce of hearts. North returns the seven of spades, which South wins with the ace. Another diamond is returned by South which forces the declarer's ace, North ruffing with the five of hearts. The declarer has the rest of the tricks, but North by opening the nine of diamonds, before leading his partner's suit, has defeated the declarer's contract two tricks.

If North had not held the ace of hearts, but instead had held three small hearts, his proper lead would have been the spade, because if he opened the singleton diamond, the declarer would pick up the trump, establish his diamonds and discard his two losing spades.

REFRESHER COURSES

AIDS FOR BRITISH TEACHERS

London, Aug. 15. The London County Council is again arranging an extensive programme of lectures and "refresher classes" to enable teachers in the Council's schools to keep abreast with educational developments and widen their outlook on literary and humanistic subjects which make the background for their teaching.

During the autumn months a number of distinguished speakers will deliver lectures, including Sir William Rothenstein, Mr. Eric Gill and Mr. Richard Sicket, Mr. F. S. Smythe, leader of the British Himalayan expedition in 1931 and a member of the Everest Expedition in 1933, Lord Passfield and Sir E. Denison Ross. The Secretary for India, Lord Zetland, will give an address on "India and the New Constitution" with the Chairman of the L.C.C., Lord Snell, presiding.

The European situation will be discussed in a series of lectures by the historian, Dr. G. P. Gooch. —British Wireless.

THE WEAK AND THE STRONG

REVENUE OFFICERS NOT "KING KONGS"

"Unfortunately our Revenue Officers cannot be King Kongs; these big fellows take advantage of them, fight with them and run away, and they are afraid to report it," said Revenue Officer Grimmitt when prosecuting Pang Ming, a seaman, before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning, with possession of 23 tael of raw opium and resisting arrest at the Tai Ping Wharf yesterday.

Mr. Grimmitt said the defendant was carrying the opium concealed in his waist. He was challenged when coming off the Tai Ping Wharf by Chinese Revenue Officer No. 27. He ran away, was arrested by the Revenue Officer, but struggled and broke loose again. He was again arrested, and began fighting. The Revenue Officer then sounded his whistle, and three other Revenue Officers arrived. It eventually took the four of them to "frow" march" the defendant along to the Revenue Office.

"This fighting and running away has become quite prevalent recently, and we are going to charge them with obstruction in future," said Mr. Grimmitt. "Revenue Officer No. 27 is not a big man, and the defendant threw him around like a piece of rag, until the others arrived. Probably the defendant is used to bullying people in his own village."

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $400, in default, four months' hard labour, on the first charge, and $100, in default two months', on the second, the sentences to run consecutively.

MILK MARKET SCHEME

PRODUCERS' POLL CLOSES

London, Aug. 15. The poll of 160,000 milk producers, which has been proceeding on the question of the continuance of the milk marketing scheme, closes to-day, and it is expected that the result will be known early next week.

It is generally anticipated that the voting will show a considerable majority in favour of continuation. When the ballot on the draft marketing scheme was taken in 1933 the majority in favour was 96 per cent. —United Press.

HITLER WANTS PEACE

PLANS WAR VETERANS' UNION

Berlin, Aug. 15. It is learned that one factor in the dissolution of the Steel Helmets is Hitler's ambition to safeguard world peace through co-operation between World War veterans. His plan envisages a co-ordinated non-political union of veterans co-operating with similar groups abroad. —United Press.

ATTACKS SILVER POLICY

MEANS BIG LOSS TO AMERICA

F. P. KEELON'S VIEW

(Special to "Telegraph")

New York, Aug. 15. Mr. Frank P. Keelon, prominent foreign exchange and bullion broker here, to-day issued a statement branding the Silver Purchase Act and Treasury regulations governing its administration as the most un-American principles ever introduced into public law.

"The law has been designed to allow the recognised increase in the value of the world's silver to accrue to foreigners while Americans residing in the United States, desiring to deal in silver, are surrounded with restrictions which, even if surmounted, exact a penalty of fifty per cent. of their profit," he said.

"We have deliberately transferred the world silver market to London from New York."

Thus, he said, the United States had not only lost the market plus the substantial refining business, but had also handed to foreign interests the shipping, insurance and handling charges of all coin and bullion acquired abroad for the United States Government.

"Not one penny of these millions now being distributed abroad is the result of any speculative activity," he concluded. —United Press.

SENATE WOULD KILL PROFITS TAX

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Aug. 15. The Senate to-day passed the McCarran amendment repealing the 50 per cent. profits tax on silver transactions, which is a feature of the Silver Act.

Senator Thomas said: "I will serve my notice that if the McCarran amendment is killed by the Conference Committee and I will have some remarks to make when the Bill is returned to the Senate."

Senator Thomas complained that the Treasury had failed to conform to the Senators' understanding, namely "that the object of the Silver Act was to raise the price of silver. It is useless to buy a lot of silver merely to use as token money. The present policy will only injure the people in the silver States who expected a firm policy. They have opened mines and now it appears as though the silver price might decline below fifty cents after Congress adjourns," he said.

By a vote of 40 to 39 the Senate passed Senator Borah's amendment to the Tax Bill forbidding the issuance of Federal Tax-exempt securities. —United Press.

KNOCKED DOWN BY TRAMCAR

MR. JOHN ROBERTSON INJURED

Mr. John Robertson, of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company, received a nasty injury to his head yesterday when he was knocked down by a tramcar at the junction of Pedder Street and Des Voeux Road Central.

The accident occurred at about 7 p.m. Mr. Robertson being in the company of Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, Mr. Justice Lindsell and another European gentleman. The party were about to cross the road near the traffic beacon, but stopped to let a tramcar get past. Mr. Robertson then attempted to cross the road, but was not aware of the approach of another tramcar from the opposite direction. He tried to retrace his steps, but was knocked down, and fell between the two cars. Both trams were proceeding slowly at the time, and stopped immediately.

Mr. Robertson was helped into a rickshaw and taken to the Colonial Dispensary, where he was attended to by Dr. Ho. He received a nasty cut on the back of his head.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Capt. Francisco Valdes, merchant navy, residing at the Peninsula Hotel, and Miss Rosario Garcia Jimeno, pharmacist, Hongkong Hotel.

ADDITIONS TO FLEETS

MERCHANTMEN AND WARSHIPS LAUNCHED

London, Aug. 15. To-day saw the launch of new vessels, mercantile and naval, from shipyards in England, Scotland and Ireland.

At Belfast the 25,000 tons Union Castle liner, Stirling Castle, was launched at Messrs. Harland & Wolff's yard. This vessel, which is intended for South Africa service, is 720 feet long and 83 feet wide and 5,000 tons larger than the biggest existing ship in the company fleet. She is a motor vessel of smart appearance with one low streamlined funnel, rounded stem and cruiser stern. There will be accommodation for 300 first class and 500 cabin class passengers.

Two destroyers of the Admiralty's 1933 programme, named Greyhound and Griffin, were launched at Vickers Armstrong's works at Barrow. On the Clyde, the Flotilla Leader Granville, embodying new development in boiler equipment, was launched from Scotstoun yard of Messrs. Yarrow. —British Wireless.

PASSPORT NOT VALID

MISTAKE REGARDING ENDORSEMENT

For arriving in the Colony without a valid passport, Ahmad Khan, 24, unemployed, was cautioned by Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Police Court this morning. The magistrate thought the defendant might have made a genuine mistake regarding a certain endorsement on his passport.

Sergeant F. E. Russell stated that the defendant arrived in Hongkong on August 1 with a passport that was not valid for Hongkong. The passport was endorsed for one single trip to Hongkong and that journey was made by the defendant last year. He had since lived in Amoy. Defendant was intending to obtain work as a licensed watchman, but as there were so many licensed watchmen unemployed in the Colony at present, the police did not see their way clear to granting him a licence.

POLICE FLYING CLUB

LORD TRENCHARD APPROVES

London, Aug. 15. Suggestions for a Flying Club for members of the Metropolitan Police Force have been approved by the Commissioner, Lord Trenchard.

The Club would be self-supporting and would not be used as part of the official police organisation, but every member would have an opportunity of qualifying as a pilot. No definite scheme has been prepared until it is seen what support the proposal obtains in the Force. —British Wireless.

ASSAULT CASE

SUBPOENAED WITNESSES FAIL TO GIVE REASON

Further evidence was taken by Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, in the case in which Chung Ngai-sai, Chan Shuen, Lam Muk-chun, Ching Lam-kun, Young Lam-lai and Chan Kong are summoned by Lau Mo-lung, Chairman of the Chinese National Athletic Association, for alleged assault.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for the prosecution, and defendants were not represented. Three subpoenaed witnesses, Wong Fook-yu, Wong Pak-hung and Hang Kam-chun, failed to give any evidence as to the reason why the complainant was allegedly assaulted. On Mr. Thomson's suggestion, Mr. da Silva treated them as hostile witnesses.

Lau Mun-kwong, complainant's nephew, said in evidence that at 8.30 p.m. on July 3, he was at complainant's business address when he and complainant were asked, through the telephone, to visit the Chu Hop Rice da Silva, the case was adjourned.
